Woman A Disciple Of Manson

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Intelligence agencies knew Lynette Fromme, a disciple of mass murderer Charles Manson, was in town. But she still got within two feet of President Ford with a loaded .45-caliber pistol.

Miss Fromme, 26, who kept in close touch with Manson even after he was sent to San Quentin Prison, was charged with attempted murder of the President.

The thin, red-haired woman was wrestled to the ground after she aimed the pistol at Ford and screamed, "It didn't go off."

The firing chamber of the Army Colt was empty, but there were four live rounds of ammunition in the clip.

As agents backed, Miss Fromme up against a tree and Ford was hustled away by his bodyguards, a witness heard her repeat over and over, "He is not a public servant. He is not a public servant."

A reporter's tape recorder also showed that she yelled, "This country is a mess! The man is not your president!"

Ford was shaking hands with spectators Friday as he walked through a park near the California Capitol for a meeting with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

"I saw a hand coming up behind several others in the front row. And obviously there was a gun in that hand," the President said.

"I then saw almost instantaneously, very quick and very effective action by the Secret Service in taking care of the matter."

A Secret Service agent stationed in Sacramento said Miss Fromme had not been under surveillance because she had never expressed any interest in the President. He also said it was impossible to keep an eye on everyone who is "a little bit of the ordinary."

Miss Fromme — Manson dubbed her "Squeaky" because her voice tends to squeak when she is agitated — was in Sacramento County Jail today under $1 million bail.

A primary hearing was set for next Thursday in Sacramento federal court. Miss Fromme's entered no plea at her arraignment Friday.

When U.S. Magistrate Esther Mix asked her if she had any statement, Miss Fromme answered in a clear voice, "No."

She came to Sacramento two years ago to be close to Manson, her spiritual leader, when he was at Folsom Prison. She and another Manson follower, Sandra Good, 39, stayed on after Manson was transferred to San Quentin, but Miss Fromme continued to correspond with him.

Manson, who is serving a life sentence, was convicted in the bizarre, execution-style slayings of movie actress Sharon Tate and six others in August 1969.

"All the intelligence agencies were aware they were in town," said Paul Young, special FBI agent in charge of the Sacramento office, referring to Miss Fromme and Miss Good.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Secret Service never had Miss Fromme under surveillance. The Secret Service refused to say if her name was on a computerized list of 50,000 people who are considered potential threats to the President.

Dwayne Keyes, the U.S. attorney who is prosecuting the case against Miss Fromme, paused a while when he was asked why security agencies failed to put her under active surveillance.

"That's difficult to answer," Keyes said. "We are now looking at this in retrospect. Law enforcement agencies are aware of a lot of people that potentially might be a problem."

"But you can't surveil every possible suspect." Because of Miss Fromme's ties with the Manson band of followers, Keyes said his office would be investigating any possible conspiracy angle, but an FBI spokesman in Washington said there was no reason at this time to believe a

Violence In Louisville Sparks Guard Callup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll called up the National Guard early today after 30 policemen were injured and about 200 persons arrested in a night of violence spawned by a school desegregation order.

An antibusing march, scheduled for today, was canceled after the disturbances by thousands of protesters, mostly whites, on the streets Friday night. They burned two school buses and damaged dozens of others, police said.

The governor said the National Guard would "assist in maintaining order and to protect property at any time during an anticipated unlawful gathering of persons in downtown Louisville today."

Guard Brig. Gen. Richard L. Frymire said that approximately 800 troops will be available in Jefferson County, where one-sixth of the school children in the joint system are being bused under federal court order.

Frymire said the Guardsmen were armed with .45-caliber pistols and M16 automatic rifles.

"We will be in support of city and county police and we would anticipate that they would be the arresting officers" in the event of further violence, he said.

"They will have ammunition with them. There are no specific orders on firing the weapons. We don't anticipate that we're going to fire the weapons at this point," the general said.

"They will be here for deployment and reserve to be used when and where needed," he said. "I would assume that troops will be sent into the downtown area when the city is ready for them."

Sue Connor, president of the anti-busing organization Concerned Parents Inc., said the demonstration was called off in an effort to avoid further violence.

One of those injured Friday night was a 3-year-old child who was hit in the face by a brick thrown through the windshield of a car.

The violence occurred after the second day of the fall school term in Jefferson County.

The county was ordered desegregated under a plan in which more than 22,000 pupils, about half of them black, are being bused. There are about 135,000 pupils in the system.

Jefferson County Police Chief Russell McDaniel said some 10,000 persons gathered in an area near Valley High School and blocked traffic on an arterial road. He said the injured child was in a car which attempted to pass through.

McDaniel said police were pelted with rocks and bottles when they forced the crowd from the thoroughfare. He said one of the injured officers faced the loss of an eye.

McDaniel said a crowd of about 1,000 gathered later near Southern High School and burned two school buses and a police cruiser and damaged about 37 other school buses. He said windows in a nearby business area were also smashed.

Police using tear gas dispersed the crowd, and police swept the area block-by-block, ordering night clubs to close and motorists to move their vehicles.

Mrs. Connor's group had obtained a parade permit to march on Thursday, but it was called off because of an order by U.S. District Court Judge James F. Gordon prohibiting demonstrations involving more than 100 persons.

The group then obtained the permit for Saturday and announced that some 20,000 persons were expected to participate.

But after Friday night's violence, Connor said she decided to urge all parents to remain at home and to stay calm.

Allegan Pair Dies In Crash

ALLEGAN — A rural Allegan couple was killed last night when their auto ran off a road northeast of here and hit a tree with such force that the vehicle split into two parts, according to Allegan county sheriff's deputies.

Killed were William J. Haas, 32, and his wife, Kay F. Haas, 28, both of route 2, 122nd avenue, Allegan, deputies said.

14 Auto Deaths In Allegan County In 1975

Mrs. Haas was pronounced dead on arrival at Allegan General hospital and Mr. Haas died in the hospital at 10:30 p.m. The accident occurred around 9 p.m., police said.

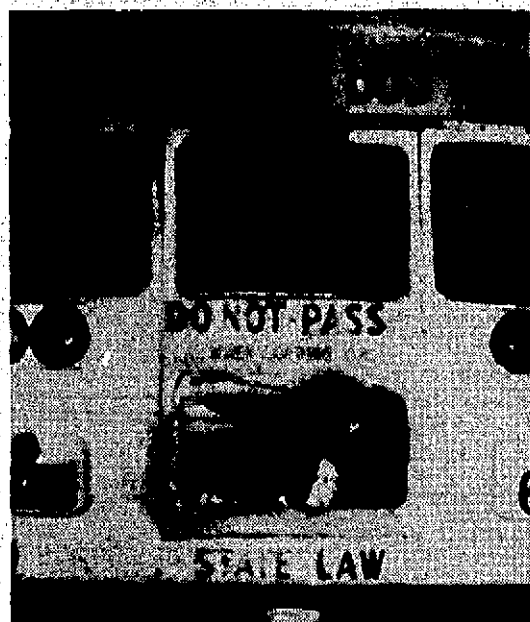

Their deaths were the 13th and 14th on Allegan county roads this year. Last year at this time, 15 people had died as a result of traffic accidents in the county.

Deputies said the Haas car was headed west on 118th avenue when the driver apparently lost control. The car went off the road and rammed a tree, and both occupants were thrown from the vehicle.

Police said Mrs. Haas ended up 85 feet from the point of impact and Mr. Haas 175 feet away. Police said they believe Mr. Haas was driving the auto, which split in two as a result of the crash. There were no other passengers.

Police said the road was clear and dry at the time, and the accident happened on a straight section of the road.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete early this morning at Gordon funeral home, Allegan.

BUS BURNED: A number of school buses were set on fire at Southern High School in Louisville, Ky., as anti-busing demonstrators clashed with police in Jefferson county Friday night. Some 200 persons were reported arrested, and 800 National Guardsmen were called to assist police. (AP Wirephoto)

Congress Should Hold Strings On Foreign Debtors

Although the Internal Revenue Service can be very hard-nosed when it comes to collecting debts from the nation's taxpayers, Uncle Sam is an easy mark for foreign debtors. It has become something of an unsavory tradition for presidents simply to forgive billions of dollars in debts owed by other countries.

This practice would be halted if a bill introduced by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. of Virginia becomes law. Under the measure, debts owned the U.S. by other nations could not be settled for less than face value unless Congress approved.

Three instances of debt forgiveness were cited by Byrd to demonstrate the kind of presidential abuse his measure would prohibit: the "settlement" of the Soviet Union's World War II lend-lease debt of $2.6 billion for $48 million (still not paid), outright cancellation of a $2.2 billion debt owned by India and settlement of $370 million owed by France for $100 million.

Those are but three of a long list of loans which turned into gifts from the American taxpayer simply on the say-so of a president. Congress has every right to put an end to it.

September Shortchanged

Even in the days of the ancient Romans politics played a major part in current affairs. In the administrations of the Caesars the government, as represented by the then current emperor, dipped into many facets, as indicated by the calendar month of September.

Emperor Augustus took over the job shortly after his Uncle Julius had worked the calendar over and added a month named in his honor — July. When Augustus came on the scene he order further changes, with the addition of a month named for him — August.

Scholars given the job of changing the calendar reported back that only 30 days were available. Uncle Julius had 31 days and Augustus would settle for nothing less. "Take a day from September," he ordered.

Until that time September had been the seventh month in the calendar, and so named. It was displaced and shortened to please the vanity of the emperors.

GOD IS 'SHE' THIS WRITER SAYS

Editor,
I was contemplating a "lady-like" response to Paul Wilcoxson's August 25, 1973 letter to the Palladium, when my sense of values (formed by a Christian upbringing) prevailed.

Wilcoxson's so-called "Christian" denunciation of Betty Ford made me sick. It is one thing to be a Christian and quite another to be so pious that one's thinking becomes impaired.

As a woman, as a feminist, and as a supporter of Betty Ford let me say to the Paul Wilcoxson of the world, "You must trust in God; SHE will save us, too."

LAND OF THE FREE LOSING FREEDOM

Editor,
Herald-Palladium:
Since my early teens my father only advised me what to do or not, for he wanted me to learn to make my own decisions, and shoulder the responsibilities for those decisions. As a good father, he bailed me out a few times too, when the going got tough.

Small wonder that I learned to cherish the freedom he gave me, and that I chose to live in the "Land of the Free."

In the three decades since I settled here, I have seen such freedom diminish steadily, as Creeping Socialism, advanced year after year. No longer do we make our own decisions and shoulder the responsibility for them. Our "Great White Father" does no longer advise, but orders us each day of our life what to do, and when and how.

True, the many standards, established by experts of the bureaus created by the State and Federal legislatures, reflect a wisdom paralleling my own father. But the freedom to heed or ignore their sound advice no longer exists in so many cases.

In addition, the standards set so far away, frequently fail to fit the local circumstances, but must be followed anyway, across the board and without exception.

When I came here, our country was the last bastion of Freedom in the civilized world, with Russia a collectivist Communist, Germany a collectivist National Socialist, Italy a collectivist Fascist state and the other nations well on their way toward various forms of collectivist Socialism.

Before the Second World War we started to follow suit, chasing after collective and mandatory Social Security. Oh, our President extolled the ideal of the Four Freedoms (from Want, from Fear, etc.) but never mentioned the price: the loss of our personal freedom!

The collectivist "road" progressed ever since, always with the best of our interests at heart. Mandatory insurance, education, health, welfare, environment, etc. And each new benefit came at the loss of our personal freedom.

When Patrick Henry voiced his choice, I think his Liberty meant personal freedom.

Will we finally lose it all by the 200th Birthday of the Nation?

McKinley Shot 74 Years Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — The apparent attempted assassination of President Ford on Friday fell one day short of the 74th anniversary of the fatal shooting of another Republican chief executive, William McKinley.

Leon Czolgosz, a Polish-born anarchist, wounded McKinley with two bullets on Sept. 6, 1901 as the President shook hands on a reception line at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N.Y.

McKinley died eight days later, and Czolgosz subsequently was tried, convicted and executed in the electric chair.

How Raises Won Approval

WASHINGTON — "I attempted to make an amendment on the floor of the House (of Representatives) to make the salary of congressmen a minimum of $5,000 and a maximum of $30,000, and provided that every member should come in at the beginning of the session and sign an affidavit as to what he thought he was worth within that range, and that is what he would be paid."

Such was the cynical reaction of Congressman Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) to the debate on raising congressional salaries by providing every member and his staff with regular automatic cost-of-living increases from here on out — so that they never again will personally feel the effects of inflation, so worrisome in the lives of all the rest of us, their constituents. Hays, nevertheless, voted for the raise.

As has been reported, this perpetual cost-of-living increment, along with similar favors for federal judges, several thousand top government officials and 600 generals, was so unobtrusively tacked on to a minor Post Office bill and so carefully shepherded by Senate and House leaders that passage was quick and with little debate.

The entire action was carefully orchestrated to be introduced and passed before public opinion was aroused and thousands of nasty editorials written — a development which could have killed the raises aborning.

In the midst of the short debate, Representative Bauman, (R-Md.) observed in a session with his colleagues, "You know what is happening in this circle of canary-eating grins..."

But the ayes had it. Sen. Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) argued that the Congress had to do something "to help those members who are barely getting along with their $42,500 salary."

Congressman Peter Peyser (R-N.Y.), on the House side, said that the economics of being a congressman "are murder." He indicated that coming to Congress had been an economic disaster for him, but that he was willing to make this sacrifice in the public good. However, he wanted the raises.

But the ultimate rationalization was put forward by Rep. Abner J. Mikva (D-Ill.), who, noting that only 15 per cent of those questioned in a recent poll approved of the way Congress has been acting, argued that their low salaries in the cause of the low esteem in which senators and representatives are held. The solution, and the key to greater respect, Mikva indicated, was to raise congressional pay.

With these compelling arguments before them, the Senate voted the raises by 98 to 20 and the House by a slippery 214 to 213. One man, Rep. Herbert Burke (R-Fla.) changed his vote to aye in midstream, saving the day for those who believed themselves overworked and underpaid.

The majority, was in no mood to listen to those who argued caution. Rep. William Armstrong (R-Colo.) expressed the view of a minority when he asked "...are we going to insulate ourselves from the concerns of our constituents? We are so pampered and so coddled and so isolated from the day-to-day concerns... (of) our people at home... it becomes almost impossible for us to represent them."

I concur.

Zapping Some Myths

It probably does little or no good to puncture a widely believed myth, one that prevails on the streetcorner, in the popular press, and, yea, even in the State Department sanctuaries where Secretary Henry Kissinger entertains the distinguished Mr. James Reston.

Yet when this big vulnerable myth comes down the road an irresistible impulse arises to puncture it, if only for the sport involved.

The myth we are going to zap today has two aspects, viz., that the "wayward economics of big business" caused the Great Depression (Newsweek, Aug. 25) and that "the radical innovation and leadership" of the New Deal "rescued the American economic system from the Depression of the Thirties" (Henry Kissinger's view, as reported by James Reston in the New York Times).

Now I suppose that Newsweek cannot really be held to any very high standard of accuracy, but Dr. Kissinger, after all, is a historian and a Harvard professor, and his view that the New Deal rescued America from the Depression has about as much academic standing today as the story about George Washington and the cherry tree.

The facts are completely established and plain enough. Under assorted New Deal economic measures, the economy lurched briefly ahead in 1936 and 1937, but late in 1937 it hit the skids once again.

During a nine-month period in 1937 and 1938, industrial production dropped by more than 34 per cent — the sharpest break in the history of the nation. The first shock between 1929 and 1932, was nowhere near as abrupt. Unemployment during the 1937-38 slump rose again to 10 million. As one economic text remarks, "the New Deal has achieved a 'first': a Depression within a Depression."

And now let us zap the other aspect of the myth, Newsweek's notion that "the wayward economics of big business" — whatever that might mean — caused the Depression.

Broad academic agreement exists today on the following. This country's major depressions started in 1837, 1873, 1892, and 1929. In each case and without exception, the crash was preceded by a sustained period of government-inspired inflation of one sort or another.

Before the 1837 crash, the inflation had been fueled by a large amount of unsound paper money issued by the state banks. The bust of 1873 proceeded from the Federally managed inflation during the Civil War period. The issuance of large quantities of silver notes preceded the crash of 1892. The Great Depression of the 1930s followed the inflationary boom of the '20s, which was fueled by a dramatic expansion of the money supply brought about by the Federal Reserve System.

Between June 1921 and June 1929, the money supply increased by an astonishing 62 per cent, from $45.3 billion to $73.3 billion. Naturally, the stock market soared to incredible heights — but this was symptom, not cause.

The cause of the Great Depression, it is generally agreed by experts, was not big business or stock market speculation or bogie-men Rubber Barons, but a decade of inflation deliberately stimulated by the Federal government.

Of course, it hardly matters that all this is true. The myth is more satisfying. The mythic villain, big business, is a villain more suited to popular taste.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge has specifically forbidden a "sick-out" by longshoremen after a union official said his men might use such a tactic to avoid loading Russian grain. U.S. District Judge Alvin Rubin signed a 90-day injunction Friday, ordering International Longshoremen's Association members to load grain bought by Russia aboard ships at the Port of New Orleans.

BH Agency Gets 'No Reimbursement' Ruling

MODEL CITIES REJECTS THIRD OF SPENDING

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Almost one-third of the money spent by a Model Cities program has been declared ineligible for reimbursement by the Benton Harbor-Benton Township Model Cities council.

Ronald Weber, deputy director of the Model Cities program, said that $22,155 of the total $68,521 budgeted for the Institute for Family and Community Studies program has been declared ineligible.

The program, which operated under Model Cities money for nine months, sought to combat social problems of Benton Harbor by training 40 "trainees" to train families in home maintenance, child-parent relationships and discipline and responsibility in the home.

Under Model Cities guidelines, the disallowed money would come from the pocket of Dr. Conrad Reichert, director of the program.

Dr. Reichert told this newspaper that he felt that the costs should not be ineligible and that he planned to appeal the ruling to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), administrators of the now-terminated Model Cities program.

"All the costs were submitted under the terms of the contract as itemized in our Model Cities budget," he said. "We have detailed and documented all of our spending."

Dr. Reichert said the program was continuing under private funds and funds from the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Included in the costs ruled ineligible are office rent and secretarial work conducted under a third party contract, interest paid on loans taken out by the program, legal and accounting fees, and all of the consulting fees paid to Helen Ford, executive director of Berrien County Action, Inc. (BCA) and consultant for the program.

Weber said the payments to Helen Ford, of $4,455, were ruled ineligible because she has a maximum limitation set on her as executive director of Berrien County Action, Inc., of $15,000. Weber said payment of consultant fees would have exceeded the maximum limit and would probably have been a "violation of government limitations."

Weber said Model Cities was investigating with the aid of legal counsel from the Chicago regional office of the Community Services Administration, funders of BCA, as to whether there was a violation.

Mrs. Ford charged that the ineligibility ruling was "part of a continuing attack upon her since she came to Berrien County." She said her contract with BCA had no effect on her acceptance of Model Cities money and was "out of jurisdiction and concern" of Model Cities personnel.

"I suspect that because the local muckrakers have not been able to get an opinion from HUD, the Model Cities funding source, they have used their inside information about Community Services Administration to get a negative opinion from them," Mrs. Ford said.

Weber also said that there was a "conflict in times" reported by Mrs. Ford with times she billed Model Cities as working for the Institute for Family and Community Studies being the same hours she was supposed to be working for BCA.

Mrs. Ford responded that she works an average of 70 hours weekly and that her work on the Institute program has never exceeded 80 hours monthly. "I had no qualms about listing daylight hours because I punch no clock for either program, and hours of work are not relevant in this line of professional endeavor," she said.

"There are, however, members of the Model Cities staff and the city commission less than committed to the work ethic, and who can therefore not understand productive labor or the time devoted to human services," Mrs. Ford said.

A breakdown of the ineligible costs as listed by Weber and approved by the Benton Harbor-Benton Township Model Cities council:

— $4,455, for all of Mrs. Ford's consultant fees to the program.

— $14,300, for half of other consulting fees paid for office rent and secretarial work under a third party agreement the program had with the Hewitt Research Center.

— $3,400, for legal and accounting fees, which included payment of interest on loans taken out by the program, payment to purchase tickets for a retirement dinner, and "undocumented or unnecessary" travel expenses.

BH Woman Given 2 Years Probation

A 19-year-old Benton Harbor woman has been sentenced to two years probation in U.S. District court in Grand Rapids for possessing a state treasury check stolen from the mail.

Bernice Elaine Starks, 363 McAllister, was sentenced by Judge Noel Fox after pleading guilty to possessing a stolen social services department ADC check for $159.50.

The offense occurred Oct. 17, 1974, in Benton Harbor.

BH Man Accused Of Leaving Scene

Thurston A. Campbell, 42, of 149 North Seely, Benton Harbor, was booked on a charge of leaving the scene of an injury traffic accident in Benton township about 6:30 p.m. Friday, according to Berrien sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said Campbell was apprehended at his home shortly after the accident. Witnesses provided a description of an auto, officers said.

Treated and released from Mercy hospital was Johnnie Hill, 25, of 321 Bridgman, Benton township. Deputies said Hill was a passenger in an auto operated by Roosevelt Bates, 42, of 183 Garfield, Benton Harbor.

The Bates auto was reported parked in an alley off Margaret, near Chicago avenue. Witnesses told deputies a second auto entered the alley, struck a fence and then backed into the parked car. The second car then was then turned around and driven away, officers were told.

EROSION CONTROL: Consumers Power company has nearly completed first phase of two-phase breakwater construction at its Palisades nuclear power plant in Covert township. Huge boulders have been deposited along 400 feet of shoreline in front of and to south of main building as part of Phase 1. Second phase will include additional 1,000 feet of stone breakwater and will extend to south of cooling towers (center right) in this Adolph Hann aerial photo. Spokesman for Consumers said total project will cost some $250,000. Erosion caused by Lake Michigan waves had threatened to uncover pipelines that carry heated water from main plant to cooling towers. Canonic construction of South Haven is building stone seawall.

Teenagers Arrested In Armed Robberies

Three juvenile boys were arrested Friday in connection with armed robberies at the Cass Dairy store, Benton Heights, last Aug. 9, and of a motorist on East Main street, Benton township, on Aug. 20, according to the state police post at Benton Harbor.

The post said the 16-year-old boys, all of Benton township, were lodged in Berrien county jail, and that the prosecutor's office was considering whether to seek a waiver from probate court to charge the three in adult court.

The boys were apprehended at their homes about 7 a.m. following an investigation by Trooper Gerard Truszkowski, the post reported.

The post said $325 was stolen at gunpoint from the Cass Dairy store. The motorist, Robert Salmon, Dan Smith road, Watervliet township, was robbed at gunpoint of $340 as he walked to a pay telephone at Main and Pine after his auto stalled, the post reported.

Troopers from the Benton Harbor post about 4:30 p.m. Friday arrested two Detroit men after confiscating two pistols and suspected heroin from an auto stopped for weaving from lane to lane on I-94, St. Joseph township.

Eau Claire Officer Is Found Innocent

A suspended Eau Claire policeman was found innocent on a charge of filing a false report of a crime by a jury in Berrien Fifth District court Thursday.

Found innocent was John Baldwin, 27, of Route 1, Berrien Springs. Following the verdict Eau Claire Police Chief Robert Wohler lifted the suspension which had been in effect since early June.

However, Wohler reports, Baldwin has resigned from the force and intends to continue the business he took up during his suspension. On May 29 Baldwin, a full-time sergeant, arrested a man in Eau Claire on a charge of resisting arrest. After an interview with the arrested man, the Berrien prosecutors office dismissed the charge and began to investigate the incident.

On June 11 Baldwin was charged with filing a false report of the arrest.

According to Chief Wohler, the jury ruled that Baldwin's report was correct.

The day-long trial was held before District Judge Leo Cook.

Chamber Posts Alert On Phone Advertiser

Industries, especially fair and equal opportunity employers, should be on the alert for people who imply or suggest they represent a federal agency, according to Roger H. Curry, executive vice president, Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. A number of local employers have received calls from a man who indicates he is from the Division of Fair Employment, of the Equal Opportunity Commission. He indicates that because a company is a fair and equal opportunity employer they should support his publication by agreeing to advertise. One of the industrialists has found an effective way to discourage this type of telephone caller. He requests a copy of a recent issue of their publication. Another manufacturer replies that he does not subscribe to advertising over the telephone. In most instances the caller is from California, according to Curry.

Writes Sunday Worship Study

First Non-Catholic At University

By RANDOLPH NEALL
BENTON SPRINGS — Hostilities that left over one million Jews dead during the seven decades after 70 A.D. helped shape what ever since has been nearly universal in Christianity: worship on Sunday rather than on the Jewish Sabbath.

That, in part, is the contention of a section of a doctoral dissertation published this summer with the official sanction (Imprimatur) of a top Jewish university, the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome.

The author, Dr. Samuele Bacchocchi, a religion professor at Andrews University, was the first non-Catholic admitted to a regular doctoral program at the Jewish university in its 425-year history — a rare ecclesiastical gesture, he said.

Once admitted, he was barred from honorees, including a $1,000 gold medal from Pope Paul VI for attaining the top academic distinction of "summa cum laude."

Dr. Bacchocchi's study probes ancient Latin and Greek documents that show how thoroughly Jews were hated throughout the Roman empire during the first centuries after Christ and how desperately Christians sought to avoid all possible identification with Jews.

By the most conservative tallies, he observes, more Jews were killed in violent uprisings between 70 and 135 A.D. than all United States troops killed in the Civil War, World War I, World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. Some observers of the time placed Jewish fatalities near two million, the professor writes.

Whether the figure, portions of Palestine that were once well populated, became virtual deserts, according to the study, which gives the following details on how it happened:

Roman forces under Titus killed 600,000 Jews to quell a violent revolt in Jerusalem in 70 A.D. But the Jews, ever chafing under Roman control, continued to stage violent revolts throughout the empire until 135

Christian involving riots, stonings, and martyrdoms. Jews driven by nationalistic hatred directed a "massive and cruel" persecution against Christians during the Bar Kokhba war, the study says.

Christians never forgave the Jews for promoting Christ's execution; and, Bacchocchi says, church leaders, sought to rid themselves of even the scent of Judaism.

This, Bacchocchi says, required careful maneuvering, since Christianity, after all, grew out of Judaism. Christ, a Jew, actually sought to strengthen the authority of the Jewish Old Testament law and prophets, according to the study.

Part of that law, at first kept by Jews and Christians alike, Bacchocchi says, was the fourth commandment requirement to observe the Sabbath (Saturday). He found no evidence that Christians did otherwise until after 100 A.D., when the Sabbath proved to be an embarrassing and even hazardous trademark for Christians, particularly those in Rome.

The Christians, he says, found themselves all too easily identified with the Jews by worshipping on the same day as they observed in an empire that generally reserved Sunday, if any day, for sun worship and holidays.

For many Christians, the Sabbath would have to go, and Sunday became an increasingly attractive alternative. Many Christians were former sun worshippers, and Sunday was far more palatable than the Jewish Sabbath to the millions that Christians hoped to convert, or at least live with, says the study.

The change from Sabbath to Sunday was an arduous process, but Christian theologians proved equal to the task. They reinterpreted the symbol of the sun to refer to Jesus, "the Sun of Righteousness," and "the Light of the World." Light, they noted, was created on Sunday, the first day of the week, according to Genesis.

An argument that gained great force in the third century was that Christ rose from death on Sunday and purportedly met with his disciples on the two Sundays following, the study says.

Early in the second century, Bacchocchi writes, Easter Sunday was instituted, and the weekly Christian observance of Sunday soon followed.

Rome, the dissertation says, quickly became the champion of the new day. In that city few of the Christians were former Jews. Jewish-Christian-Roman tensions there were at their hottest. Moreover, the study adds, Rome was the seat of the Roman empire — and of the most powerful bishop in Christendom, the only bishop strong enough to initiate such a drastic change.

But even in Rome, Sunday observance did not immediately

Women On Offensive For Priesthood

REV. BETTY ROSENBERG

Five Episcopalians To Be Ordained Sunday

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A "second wave" of Episcopal women is going on the offensive for the priesthood. They say that their taking of ordination vows as priests this Sunday will stir both resentment and hope.

It "will bring joy and hope to many, anger and conflict to others," the five women scheduled to participate in the controversial rite in Washington, D.C., said in a joint statement.

But they added that to continue to accept practices denying women the priesthood because of their sex is "contrary to the gospel and destructive to our church."

The five, all of them with advanced educations and professional church experience, are to join the ranks of 11 other women irregularly ordained by three retired bishops in Philadelphia 13 months ago.

"I think of us as the second wave," says the Rev. Betty Rosenberg, 30, a native of Wilmington, Del., who holds a doctor of ministry degree and now serves as a deacon in Washington, D.C.

"Some of our sisters have walked this way before us, yet the path is still difficult."

Unlike the 11 ordained last year, four of the five this time have been recommended for priestly orders by their home vestries and diocesan standing committees. Lack of such recommendations in the previous case had caused wide criticism.

But the currently planned ordinations also aroused disapproval. "Tragic and saddening," said the Rev. Canon Charles H. Osborn, of Pelham Manor, N.Y., executive director of the American Church Union, the high-church Episcopal wing.

The ordaining bishop for the Washington event this Sunday is a retired prelate, the Rev. George W. Barrett, 67, former bishop of Rochester, N.Y., now of Santa Barbara, Calif.

"Successful revolutions tend to gather momentum and create greater demands for change until their objectives are achieved," says Bishop Barrett, who once headed special church studies on women in the ministry.

"I'm sure the coming ordinations are a sign of such acceleration."

However, Washington Bishop William F. Creighton has denied permission for the ceremony, even though he favors ordination of women, and plans to start ordaining them after the 1978 Episcopal convention, whether it approves or not.

His delay about it was protested by one of the five, the Rev. Alison Palmer, 44, a native of Medford, Mass., a career foreign service officer in the U.S. Department of State and a parish assistant in Washington.

In a letter, she told Bishop Creighton that if the 1978 convention rejects women's ordination, "then for you to proceed to ordain would be to slap delegates in the face." She said it would be better for him to go ahead now.

Another of the five, the Rev. Diane Tickell, 37, a deacon serving as a social service worker for the Anchorage Community Hospital in Alaska, says: "If it will suddenly be 'right' in 1978 for me to be a priest, it is 'right' now. My sense of integrity requires at this point in time that I vote with my feet and act on my own convictions."

Another of the five, the Rev. Phyllis Edwards, 48, of Evanston, Ill., director of Christian education at a parish there, figured in an earlier controversy in 1969 when the late Bishop James Pike gave her as a deacon regular pastoral duties.

The church did not until 1970 accept women deacons as being in the same ministry as male deacons, for whom it was a first step to full priesthood.

Another of the five, the Rev. Lee McGee, 33, a native of Baltimore with a master's degree in religion and now a chaplain at American University in Washington, says ordination "will be an asset" in her campus ministry.

"It is imperative for the church's sake," she adds, "that we be open to spiritual gifts in all persons in our Christian community."

The donor is Henry F. Brown, a retired Seventh-day Adventist pastor in Oregon. He is a veteran missionary to South America and a former church administrator at Adventist world headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Mitchell said she will determine the market value of the collection within the next several weeks.

The collection contains a number of rare books, including some over 300 years old. One of these, an attack on Anabaptists, is entitled, "The Dippers Dipped and Head and Ears at a Disputation in Southwark; Their Wild Preachings and Practices in Germany." The book was published in London in 1847.

Also included among the 3,000 books are 150 Bibles published over the past century in several languages. One set of 25 volumes, now out of print, contains writings of early church fathers.

The collection will be housed, intact, under Brown's name in the new wing of the library now under construction. The books will not be available for general use until the new wing is completed after the end of next school year, Mrs. Mitchell said.

Brown himself has written several books, including, "Mithraism: Drift of Continents" and "History of Immemorial Baptism."

He has been a missionary in Honduras, Chile and Europe. In the United States, he has served the church in various capacities since 1918 in Texas, Arizona, California and Washington, D.C. He retired in 1965.

THE BIBLE

No. 293. The King Rewards Mordecai

Queen Esther was relieved when she obtained favor in King Ahasuerus' sight, and when he asked her what favor she desired. However, she merely asked the king and Haman to a banquet. At the banquet, he again asked what favor she desired, but she only invited them to another banquet the following day.

Haman's wife suggested that he erect a gallows, and before attending the first banquet, obtain the king's permission to hang Mordecai. However, on this night the king could not sleep, so he had read in the chronicles of the time Mordecai had saved him from the assassination.

The king asked Haman how he could honor a man for loyal service, and Haman, falsely thinking the king spoke of him, suggested dressing him in royal raiment, mounting him upon the royal steed, and having a prince parade him through the street. Haman was shocked when ordered to do these for Mordecai: "Then took Haman the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai, and brought him on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaimed before him, Thus shall it be done unto the man who the king delighteth to honour." (Esther 6:11)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Toenail Decision Reversed!

Dear Ann Landers: I can't get one of your lousy answers off my mind. It was the advice you gave the woman whose husband's long toenails cut her legs during the night. It seems she tried everything to protect herself but nothing worked.

Her husband liked his toenails just the way they were and if she woke up with bleeding sores that was her tough luck. Your brilliant solution was to buy a pedicure set and trim his toenails herself. You said he would enjoy the pampering. Well, who wouldn't?

I almost cried when she said she was wearing pantyhose to bed and he was ripping them. Why didn't you tell the big slob to shape up and take a good look at the way he was treating the woman he is supposed to love? Wives are not substitute mothers. If he didn't feel like cutting his toenails HE should wear socks. Where were your brains when you answered that one, Ann? — J.V.K. of Detroit

Dear J.V.K.: On furlough, honey, and I'm sorry. You (and hundreds of other irate females) let me have it in the chops for my answer and of course you are right. I'm reversing myself and adding one more piece of advice to the embattled victim. Stop mending King Kong's torn socks, kiddo. If he has to buy a dozen new pair every three weeks he just might shape up.

Get Checked

Dear Ann Landers: My mother asked me to write to you because she is too embarrassed. Also, she only went to the sixth grade and is ashamed of her English and spelling.

Mom has arthritis and high blood pressure. She is also in the change. She has a good doctor and feels pretty good.

The problem is that Mom seems to be growing a lot of hair on her arms and legs. Her age is 52. What does this sound like to you? I realize you aren't a doctor, but maybe you can check with some of your experts and give Mom some help. — A Daughter Who Cares

Dear Daughter: The first thing your mother should do is have a thorough examination to make sure she has no tumors that are producing male hormones. These tumors not only can cause hairiness, but they might be malignant.

I don't want to scare anybody, but it's much better to look into a problem and learn you are O.K. than ignore it and be sorry later that it wasn't discovered in

Fernwood Schedule

Fernwood Nature Photographers and Fernwood chapter of the Indoor Light Gardening Society of America are scheduled to meet this month.

Fernwood Nature Photographers will hold their third annual fall meeting and field trip Sunday, Sept. 14. The trip will be to Sarett Nature Center, Benton Harbor, and will leave from Fernwood's parking lot.

On Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 7:30 p.m. the Fernwood chapter of the Indoor Light Gardening Society of America will meet.

The group meets the third Tuesday of each month.

Programs range from growing flowers and vegetables under lights to plant swaps. Interested persons are invited to join.

Fernwood Nature Center is located south of Berrien Springs on Range Line road.

the early stages.

Food Schedule

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle a family argument before somebody gets hurt. My husband and I have reached a serious impasse.

Who decides when to get up and when to eat — the host or the guests?

My husband's sisters are visiting and they are about to drive me nuts. We're out of bed at 7:00 a.m. with our kids. The two prima donnas sleep until 11 a.m. When they get up, I have to cook a second breakfast. Of course they can't eat lunch with us at noon so I have to fix a second lunch at 3:30 p.m. Dinner at 6:30 is "too early" for them, so I cook again at 8:00 p.m.

Dear T.: Let the prima donnas make their own breakfast. Prepare enough lunch and dinner so they can re-heat the food when they get ready to eat. And make no apologies. Invite them to keep your company at the table when you eat and do the same for them — if possible.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Peachy Rule Of Thumb

Fresh peaches are probably the most versatile of all fruit.

You can serve them up for breakfast, lunch or dinner. You can bake them, broil them, poach them, sauce them, preserve them, pickle them, brandy them, freeze them, jam them, can them — and devour them just as they are.

Before engaging in some or all of these activities, here's a handy peach rule of thumb to keep in mind. Three, medium-size peaches make one pound — or two cups of sliced peaches — or two cups of puree. About one and one-fourth pounds of fresh peaches makes one pint of frozen or canned peaches.

Gentle Brushing Is Better

Once upon a time women were urged to brush their hair vigorously for at least 100 strokes.

Research now shows brushing does keep hair more healthy but gentle brushing cuts down on hair breakage and root damage.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Japanese mushrooms have captured the imagination of doctors collaboratively working in Japan and at the University of Michigan.

Japanese scientists are said to have isolated a chemical in these mushrooms that can lower cholesterol levels in the blood.

Dr. Kenneth W. Cochran of Michigan is investigating this chemical, eritadenine. He is comparing it to that found in the American mushroom.

Experimental studies hold promise for this new discovery.

The pendulum swings to, and fro in the discussion of the value of breast feeding.

It has always been recognized that there is great psychological value in the closeness of the relationship that exists between the mother and the breast-fed infant.

Dr. Alan E. Beer, working at the University of Texas, in Dallas, found that human milk may contain valuable antibodies and proteins that protect the infant from infection.

Dr. Beer and his colleagues believe that immune protection is one of the great benefits of breast feeding.

With this added hypothesis advocates of breast feeding will, indeed, go into high gear.

It often becomes important to know how actively blood flows from the heart, to the carotid arteries, to the brain.

Dr. Mark M. Kartchner and Dr. Lorin McRae, of the Tucson Medical Center in Arizona, have devised a method that determines any obstruction in the carotid artery.

A sensitive microphone, placed over the neck, records the sound of blood flowing through the arteries. The sounds are transcribed to a tape recorder.

Irregularities of blood flow can thus be detected. This is particularly important to those who hope to learn how to reduce the frequency of strokes in patients with severe arteriosclerosis.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "What to Do About Ulcers." For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Ulcer Booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station.

Police Hunting Former Officer

SPRINTING, Mich. (AP) — A nationwide police hunt went out Friday for a former Ann Arbor policeman accused of using force to take his two sons from his ex-wife's home.

Authorities said the man, 36-year-old Robert J. Irvine, entered the Michael Bodary home early Tuesday after Bodary had left for work.

He walked in and shouted, "I've been waiting here for five days and you'll never see the boys again," said Kathy Bodary, Irvine's ex-wife. "Then he played me with a mace, handcuffed my wrists, made me go into the fruit cellar and tied me up." Mrs. Bodary said.

She told officers Irvine then went upstairs and took the two boys, 8-year-old Andrew and 6-year-old Alexander, who were wearing T-shirts and underwear.

Police said Irvine may be headed for Arlington, Tex., where he owns a mobile home. He was believed to be driving a green Volvo with Texas license plates.

Officers said Irvine was fired from the Ann Arbor police department about five years ago for "unsuitability" after serving only six months on the force. He is currently unemployed.

Ypsilanti Police Detective William Ing said, "Technically, we don't have a kidnapping because you can't kidnap your own kids. But we were able to obtain a warrant for Irvine's arrest on a charge of felonious assault against Mrs. Bodary."

A police spokesman said a court order prevented Irvine from seeing the two boys. Mrs. Bodary told police that neither she nor the children had seen Irvine for about two years. She said about six months ago she received a letter from her ex-husband saying he would take their sons.

"We are very, very concerned for the children's safety," Mrs. Bodary said. "The boys are very afraid of him (Irvine). We don't know that he would intentionally harm them but we just don't know. His behavior was so bizarre."

His Income 'Not Factor' For Reagan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan, actor-turned-governor, turned radio commentator, stands to lose a handsome broadcast income if he becomes a formal candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

The conservative former California governor and his aides refuse to disclose the size of Reagan's personal income from his radio shows, speaking tours and newspaper columns, all endeavors since he left the governorship in 1974.

His aides also say that income is not a factor in Reagan's hesitancy to enter the Republican presidential race.

But published reports — which Reagan has refused to either confirm or deny — place his income at $400,000 to $750,000 this year.

"We just consider the governor's income to be a personal matter, and we won't have any comment on it," Reagan spokesman Mike Deaver said in a brief interview.

The biggest chunk of that money comes from Reagan's syndicated daily political commentary show, "Viewpoint," which is sold to 320 radio stations nationwide.

If Reagan becomes a declared candidate, Federal Communications Commission equal time rules would have the effect of knocking his show off the air.

Sees No Oil Price Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil-producing nations, in a gesture of cooperation with other countries, may decide not to increase prices as expected, according to the director of the International Monetary Fund.

"I think they are aware of the impact a big price increase could have on the world economy," Johannes Witteveen said Friday in winding up the IMF and World Bank annual meeting here.

The Organization of Oil Exporting Countries meets in Vienna Sept. 23 to discuss prices. A U.S. Treasury Department official agreed there was a chance that no increase, or only a minimal one, will be imposed.

The American motorists would get a second break on gasoline prices if Congress overrides the President Ford's expected veto of a bill reinstating domestic oil price controls. Ford will delay until Tuesday his veto of the bill, Press Secretary Ron Nease said Friday.

Democrats are confident the veto will be overridden, but Ford reportedly was told by advisers that the veto could be sustained by a narrow margin.

Ford planned to discuss energy legislation today at a White House meeting with Democratic members of Congress.

Controls, which expired last weekend after four years, have kept the cost of some oil low. If prices were freed from regulation, the price of gasoline would likely rise at least three cents a gallon.

Senate Republicans introduced a bill Friday to restore controls through Oct. 15. Democrats, confident of overriding a Ford veto to restore controls for six months, blocked immediate consideration of the GOP effort, which now is eligible for debate in the Senate Monday and Tuesday.

Ford has until Tuesday midnight to veto the measure restoring price controls through March 1.

Ford contends that if fuel prices are raised, consumption will be cut, incentive will be provided for increased domestic production, and U.S. reliance on foreign oil will be reduced.

Democrats say that would worsen inflation and unemployment.

Buenos Aires Trio Kidnaped

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Two men and a woman said to be members of a leftist group were kidnaped in La Plata early today 24 hours after the bullet-riddled bodies of five colleagues were found dead near the city, police said.

Police in La Plata, 30 miles south of here, said a group of men snatched their three victims off a street corner, bundled them into a car and drove off.

Police sources said the three were members of the Socialist Workers party, a Trotskyite group.

Grape Stomp Slated Sunday At Tabor Hill

BARODA — Tabor Hill Vineyard & Wine Cellar, Inc., will hold its 10th annual vineyard blessing and grape stomping celebration, Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., according to Tim Cote, vice president of Tabor Hill.

The celebration is open to the public free of charge, and wine will be served by the glass by members of the Baroda volunteer fire department, with all proceeds going to the department.

Rev. William Pearson of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Benton Harbor, will bless the grapes at 2 p.m.

Regular vineyard tours and games for children will be provided by the Tabor Hill staff and everyone is invited to join in the annual grape stomping event, Cote said.

Tabor Hill is located on Mt. Tabor road, in Orinoko township, three miles south of Baroda or 3 1/2 miles west of Berrien Springs. Cote said signs will be erected to help direct traffic to the vineyard.

Pavulon 'Most Probably' Tool In Hospital Deaths

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Lab tests show the paralyzing drug Pavulon was "most probably" responsible for a deadly series of respiratory arrests at the Veterans Administration Hospital this summer, hospital officials said Friday.

Tests performed at the University of Michigan hospital on urine specimens from three patients who survived mysterious respiratory arrests showed evidence of a substance which may be Pavulon, officials said.

But medical authorities warned that the tests are inconclusive because at least eight other substances, such as a mouthwash used at the hospital, would produce the same or similar test results.

They said further testing is being conducted to positively identify the drug.

Authorities said the specimens were taken from three patients who experienced arrests on Aug. 15. The two patients whose test results showed a possibility of Pavulon in their urine were both successfully resuscitated and suffered no significant effects from their arrest, authorities said.

FBI agents and police are still investigating the unexplained wave of at least 51 arrests. Eleven patients who suffered arrests have died although the hospital's chief of staff says only one of those deaths is suspicious.

Investigators believe someone intentionally gave the drug to patients, probably intravenously. Psychiatrists studying the incidents say the killer, probably works at the facility, has a knowledge of medicine, is very organized and may be deranged.

Although investigators have no solid leads on the culprit, hospital officials said they will return to normal operations starting Monday, with beefed up security and more rigid drug controls.

The hospital, which usually cares for more than 300 patients, operated on a restricted basis, admitting only emergency, urgent and psychiatric cases until Wednesday, when a few new patients were admitted. Though there have been several respiratory arrests resulting in death at the hospital since the multiple arrests on Aug. 15, hospital officials say none of those were suspicious.

Officials said Friday that although the beginning of the series of mysterious attacks can be traced back to July 1, officials at the hospital said they did not recognize and begin to investigate the mystery until Aug. 15.

Increased security was put on the drug at that time, an antidote was placed at doctors' fingertips and the FBI was called in.

Dr. Gary Calhoun, assistant chief of staff at the hospital, said it took a little over a month for the staff to see a definite irregularity in the number and type of arrests.

"That's how long it took. I haven't got anything to compare it with, so I can't say whether it is good or bad," he said.

Calhoun added that once the upsurge was recognized, there was a 90 per cent recovery rate from the arrests.

Travel, Tourism Up In Michigan

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Travel and tourism in Michigan this summer was 15 to 20 per cent better than in 1974, according to surveys by the Automobile Club of Michigan and the Michigan Tourist Council.

A study prepared for the tourist council by Market Opinion Research of Detroit indicates Michigan residents are responsible for 58 per cent of the travel in Michigan.

But the survey shows out-of-state tourists remain on vacation in Michigan longer and spend more money on their trips than residents.

The AAA survey showed tourism up 10 per cent from 1974 over the Memorial Day weekend and up 5 per cent from last year on the weekend of July 4.

The only damper put on the summer vacation period, the auto club said, was the heavy rain which washed out the Labor Day weekend. The AAA said tourism dropped 20 per cent from Labor Day 1974 in the Lower Peninsula and 10 per cent in the Upper Peninsula.

The tourist council reported a new trend in Michigan for short weekend trips. Many hotels have weekend family rates and report such gimmicks are very successful in attracting local people, a council spokesman said.

Hotels surveyed Friday in the Lansing area indicated alcohol sales in bars are down this year, possibly an indication of one way the tourist trim travel expenses.

"People who normally came in and would drink five drinks have cut down to three or switched to beer," said the general manager of one Lansing hotel.

"We even lowered the prices on our mixed drinks, but people still tipped less or switched to cheaper booze," he said.

Outstate motels seemed to do better than hotels and motels in the Detroit area.

A survey shows hotel business is down 10 to 13 per cent this year in the city of Detroit.

The drop is primarily because of a cutback in business travel, a tourist council spokesman said. "Where a company would send 25 people to a convention, they are now only sending five representatives."

Camping close to home and remaining longer in the same campsites also is on the upsurge, according to the auto club. The auto club reported preliminary figures show an increase in the average number of days campers remain in parks. And, the club says, private campground owners report campers are staying as much as twice as long as they did last year.

Revenue Sharing To Rise

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State revenue sharing for Michigan cities, villages and townships will jump $24 million this fiscal year. Under a bill signed into law this week, payments will be raised $34 million above last year and almost twice as much as five years ago. The new law guarantees each community at least $20.90 per person. The increased state assistance was sought earlier this year by Gov. William Milliken to help local governments cope with the recession. The measure also allows rapidly growing municipalities to conduct special revenue sharing censuses. The increase was the last to be signed of a three-bill series to help local government. Others revise distribution of income tax revenues and authorize the state to assume general assistance welfare payments from counties over a five-year period.

Ford Motor Studies Ways To Remain In Argentina

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) —

Ford Motor Co., describing its Argentina operations as "a disaster situation," says it has not decided whether to pull its subsidiary out of that economically troubled South American country.

"Generally speaking, I would call it a disaster situation, and I just don't know what is going to happen," Ford Chairman Henry Ford II told reporters Thursday. "We haven't made a decision to pull out of Argentina. We are watching every day."

However, a company spokesman said Friday that Ford "would like very much to stay in Argentina, and we are doing all we can to stay."

Chairman Ford's comments came the same day a company executive in Cordoba was shot and wounded by gunmen. Leonardo Castelli, 32, a labor relations chief for a spare parts factory run by Ford, was hospitalized in serious condition with bullet wounds in the stomach, legs and arms.

Ford's remarks referred only to Argentina's economic problems, however. He made no mention of the shooting episode.

"The real problem we have down there is we can't sell anything, and we have to maintain production schedules as best we can... because we can't layoff anybody. It's against the law."

"So we have yards and yards full of built up cars because they're just sitting there. We're running out of cash slowly but surely and this is a very serious problem."

Tony Giacalone Has Monday Date With Grand Jury

By PETE YOST

Associated Press Writer

Manson Disciple Accused

conspiracy existed. Manson, in his maximum security cell at San Quentin, said, "Oh, my God!" when informed of Miss Fromme's arrest. Prison officials said he appeared surprised.

In Los Angeles, however, Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Kay said, "The Manson girls just don't act on their own. They act at the behest of Charles Manson. I think Charles Manson had a hand in it. It's very easy to lip messages in and out of prison."

Kay gave no indication there was any evidence to substantiate his theory.

In July, Miss Fromme told an interviewer she blamed former President Richard M. Nixon for putting Manson behind bars.

Law enforcement authorities in Sacramento said they were unaware of the interview.

"We had no information that they ever expressed any interest in the President or anything at the federal level at all," said Douglas Duncan, special agent in charge of the Secret Service office here.

Duncan said he personally had known Miss Fromme since she was in Sacramento.

Asked why the Secret Service failed to put Miss Fromme and Miss Goud under surveillance, he said "because they never expressed any interest in the President or anything at a federal level."

"We can't surveil or make that type of investigation on any person who is a little out of the ordinary as far as some cases they might possess."

Duncan said his office had no printed file on Miss Fromme and its only information on her was "strictly word of mouth."

Keyes said tests were being run on the Army Colt .45-caliber gun which authorities said was the weapon that Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf pulled from Miss Fromme's hand.

Keyes added that Miss Fromme had also been given several tests, including a psychiatric examination, following her arrest. He declined to reveal the results of the tests.

Whether Miss Fromme knew that the gun's chamber was empty was a matter of "conjecture," Keyes said. He added that leaving the chamber empty might have been a mistake on her part.

To prepare the .45 for firing, it is necessary to push back the slide to cock the weapon after the clip and its cartridges have been inserted into the weapon.

When asked if the episode might have been a publicity stunt, rather than an assassination attempt, Keyes said:

"She could get a lot of attention without a .45 that was loaded."

Five hours after Miss Fromme was arrested, Ford praised the Secret Service and said: "This incident under no circumstances will prevent me or preclude me from contacting the American people as I travel from one state to another and from one community to another."

The episode occurred on a one-block walk through Capitol Park from Ford's hotel to the governor's office in the Capitol.

Ford waived to the crowd on the street and then slowed his pace to shake hands with members of a cheering crowd along his route.

He was about 50 yards from the entrance to the Capitol when Buendorf, walking behind Ford, suddenly lunged into the crowd.

"He saw the hand of a woman come up between two people in the crowd, and she was pushing her way through the crowd," said Nessen.

"She had a gun in her hand. The gun was about two feet from the president."

"Agent Buendorf reached and grabbed the gun with his right hand, grabbed her arm

Giacalone's attorney, Neil Fink, confirmed Friday the date with the grand jury, which has already heard from three key figures linked to the ex-Teamsters president July 30, the day he dropped from sight.

Two of the three witnesses, Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien and Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, apparently refused to cooperate with the grand jury.

The third, Leonard "Lenny" Schultz, was questioned for more than two hours.

Law enforcement sources said Giacalone refused to cooperate voluntarily when the FBI attempted to interview him early in the case.

Hoffa told his family he was on his way to meet Giacalone on July 30, the day Hoffa disappeared, but Giacalone has denied he was to meet him.

Meanwhile, the government is trying to hold onto a car owned by Giacalone's son, Joseph, who loaned it to O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, the day Hoffa disappeared.

U.S. District Judge Robert DeMascio permitted the FBI to maintain custody of the car until next Wednesday, although the judge said the FBI failed to show probable cause that a crime was committed involving the 1975 Mercury. The judge ordered the car be returned to young Giacalone.

Young Giacalone refused to let the FBI search the car without a court order and a sworn affidavit used to obtain an order says there is probable cause to believe O'Brien used Giacalone's car "to facilitate an abduction of Hoffa."

The Detroit Free Press reports in Saturday's editions that a 12-gauge shotgun was found in the car's trunk. The story quotes O'Brien as saying Joseph Giacalone frequently carried the gun to his office in Detroit.

Joseph Giacalone's attorney, Dedy LaBene, refused to confirm or deny that the FBI had a shotgun belonging to his client. But he noted the judge had ordered the return of both the car and its contents.

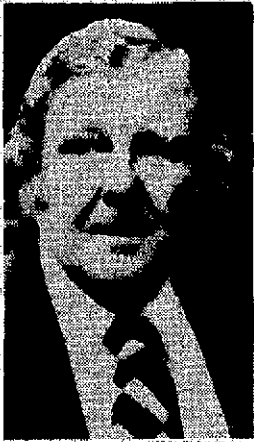

Judge DeMascio said the only evidence of the statement in the affidavit that O'Brien was driving Giacalone's car on the day Hoffa disappeared in the vicinity of the restaurant where Hoffa was last seen.

The government will attempt to appeal DeMascio's order, said U.S. Atty. Ralph Guy.

The two other men linked to Hoffa on the day he disappeared are Provenzano, a former Several employees at an airport limousine service in Pontiac recalled Hoffa stopped by to chat July 30 and mentioned he was on his way to meet "Tony P" or "Tony Pro." One employee recalled Hoffa saying he was also on his way to meet with "Lenny" or "Lenny."

Provenzano and Schultz also denied they were to meet with Hoffa that day.

Provenzano left the grand jury room after an appearance of less than 10 minutes, indicating he refused to cooperate with the probe.

Schultz appeared for more than two hours and his attorney, Jack Bain, said his client answered all questions relating to the Hoffa matter.

Watervliet Officers Injured In Scuffle

WATERVLIET — Two Watervliet police officers were treated and released at Watervliet Community hospital after they sustained minor injuries during a scuffle with a man early today.

Booked and lodged in the county jail on charges of resisting arrest, destruction of police property, assaulting a police officer and being drunk and disorderly was John E. Reese, 27, of 1388 Pipestone road, Benton township, police said.

Treated and released were Patrolman Rich Migala and Lt. John Latch.

with his left hand, forced her arm down and twisted the gun out of her hand," Nessen said.

Other Secret Service agents closed around Ford, who visibly paled at the sight of the gun. They then rushed him into the Capitol.

It's NEWS TODAY In MICHIGAN

But They All Bite

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Recent heavy rain in Michigan have brought an invasion of "floodwater" mosquitoes, according to a Michigan State University entomologist. "When low areas were flooded with water, mosquito eggs present there hatched out," said Prof. H. Don Newson. "If the water stays a week to 10 days, the mosquitoes can mature to adults and in about two days can be biting." The "floodwater" mosquitoes, Newson said, should not be confused with urban and country mosquitoes. The city dwellers have caused the outbreaks of encephalitis in Illinois, while their country cousins are responsible for Western Equine encephalitis in Minnesota and North Dakota, he said. There is, however, one thing they have in common, Newson said — they all bite.

Trio Indicted In Slaying

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A one-man grand jury issued murder indictments Friday against three men in the slaying of a Grand Rapids grocer more than a year ago. Kent County Circuit Court Judge Stuart Hoffman issued first-degree murder indictments against Kenneth E. Ross, 24, Larry Lee Rodgers, 23, and Ronald Wilson Welch, 23. All are believed to be from the Grand Rapids area. The three are charged in the July 24, 1974, slaying of Yancy Gray Jr. Gray's body was found near the back door of his grocery store. He had been shot in the chest with a shotgun. Authorities said Rodgers is jailed at Southern Michigan Prison for burglary while Ross is awaiting trial on two unrelated charges of armed robbery.

Two Strikes Still On

Following the first week of school just two school districts remain struck by teachers following acceptance of a contract by teachers in the Livonia district, the state's third largest system. Meanwhile, negotiations continued in the strikebound Taylor and St. Clair Shores Lake Shore districts in suburban Detroit. In Livonia, teachers voted 1,170-274 to return to their classrooms under a two-year tentative pact. The district's 1,000 teachers reported for work Friday for orientation sessions. Some 32,000 students in the district are to report Monday. Classes began Friday in the East Detroit district, where striking teachers settled Thursday.

State Jobless Rate Dips

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's jobless rate dropped to 12.9 per cent last month, the lowest level of the year, the MICHIGAN Employment Security Commission has reported. MESCO officials said there were 325,000 people out of work and actively seeking employment in August, down 50,200 from the month before. The unemployment rate for Michigan was 14.3 per cent in July. A year ago, the figure was 8.1 per cent, with 317,400 seeking work. S. Martin Taylor, director of the MESCO, said despite last month's drop, the figures were the highest for any August since the 1958 recession when the rate was 15.9 per cent with 406,000 out of work.

Bluffing Bank Robbers

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — A feisty teller saved her employer some money Friday when she refused to obey two bank robbers during the second holdup in two weeks at a West Bloomfield bank. Police said two men entered the Liberty State and Trust Bank shortly after 10 a.m. and ordered a teller to open her cash drawer. Police said the teller, who was not identified, told the robbers she had been held up last week and wasn't going to let the robbers have their way a second time. The robbers told the teller to get down on the floor and ordered the other three tellers to open their cash drawers; police said. They complied. The robbers then threatened to shoot the teller who refused but fled instead. Police said they believe the men were the same pair who robbed the bank of $4,000 on Aug. 25. They got another $4,000 Friday, police said.

Detroit Buses Vandalized

DETROIT (AP) — Eleven school buses, purchased for possible use in Detroit school integration, were found vandalized Friday. The 11 buses were among 150 school buses the Detroit Board of Education bought under U.S. District Court Judge Robert DeMascio's May 21 order that the board purchase the vehicles for a possible full integration program.

Watervliet Township Ambulance Vote Tuesday

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

WATERVLIET — Watervliet township residents will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a proposed 1/2-mill property tax levy that would help pay the township's share of maintaining an ambulance service in the Watervliet area.

The STAT ambulance service was set up on July 1 after the Hutchins funeral home in Watervliet announced it would no longer provide an ambulance service.

Cost of the service, expected to be $60,000 for the first year because of vehicle purchases, is to be shared equally by the township and Watervliet city.

The proposed levy, to run for three years, would produce about $10,200 in township tax revenues the first year, according to township Supervisor Lyle Woodworth.

The service would also be financed by fees charged those using the service.

In a statement, Woodworth said the "One mill increase amounts to $1 per $1,000 of the property equalized valuation figure. In other words, if an individual's property is assessed at $10,000 a 1-mill increase would amount to $10 and a 1.5-mill increase would be $15."

The township has already allocated $5,000 in federal revenue sharing funds but needs the extra tax millage to meet its share of the budget.

Voting in precinct 1 will be at the South school and at precinct 2 at the North school. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

He said "Tax payers are encouraged to figure out the millage increase based on their own individual equalized valuation in order to understand what the millage increase would amount to in dollar value to their individual family."

"In average figures, most township taxpayers would have an increase of somewhere between $6 and $16 per year for a three year period to subsidize the ambulance service and the excellent response time to an emergency call."

According to STAT records, 29 calls were responded to in July and a total of 31 patients were carried. During August, a total of 36 calls, carrying 29 patients, were made.

According to Woodworth, "The community of Watervliet needs the ambulance service and township residents are encouraged to go to the polls Tuesday and support the proposal."

Woodworth said approval of the proposal is also urged by the township board members.

RURAL BUS SERVICE: Mrs. Paul Klug of Buchanan is assisted by Driver Isaac Hister onto one of two buses operated by Berrien County Council on Aging to provide transportation for rural areas of the county with emphasis on service to senior citizens and handicapped. Mrs. Klug is past president of the River Valley chapter of the National Association of Physically Handicapped.

RURAL RUNS START NEXT WEEK

Council Has County Bus Plan

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

A rural Dial-A-Ride type bus program, operated by the Berrien County Council on Aging, will begin operations next week in Berrien county.

Two buses will provide service Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for four rural areas of the county — north, central, southeast and southwest.

Fares will be 50 cents one way for trips up to 10 miles, with senior citizens and the handicapped riding for half fare. For trips over 10 miles the fare will double.

The rural system will not operate in areas presently served by Dial-A-Ride except when necessary to take passengers into or out of homes and businesses located in those areas.

One bus can carry 12 passengers while the other, equipped with a chair lift for handicapped riders, can carry seven passengers.

Scheduling of passengers will be done through senior citizens centers in St. Joseph, Niles and the River Valley area and through the senior citizens nutrition office in Benton Harbor.

George Schuur, executive director of the council on aging, explained that the two buses would not be able to provide service to all areas every day but that a schedule has been drawn up to provide service to each area two days a week.

The schedule provides service to the north area on Tuesday and Friday, the central area Monday and Thursday, the southeast area on Wednesday and Friday, and the southwest area on Monday and Wednesday.

People wishing to ride the bus when it is in their area should phone the following centers at least one day in advance:

North — Senior Citizens Nutrition Office, Benton Harbor, 927-2495, weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Central — St. Joseph Senior Center, 983-1817, weekdays from 9:30-3:30.

Southeast — Niles-Buchanan Senior Citizens Center, 853-8380, weekdays from 9:30-4.

Southwest — River Valley Senior Citizens Center, 460-4556,

8:30-4. Schuur said the service was made possible by a State of Michigan grant through the Twin Cities Area Transportation Authority, which will provide maintenance and technical advice.

He said the grant indicates that transportation for senior citizens and the handicapped should be emphasized but that others should receive service whenever possible.

O'Hara Holds Pole Position In Beginning Senate Race

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Congressman James O'Hara appears to be the early favorite in the race for the Michigan Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next year, party insiders say.

But several other Democrats also are bunched up as possible contenders — including U.S. Rep. Donald Riegle, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, Sec. of State Richard Austin and state Sen. John Otterbacher.

Otterbacher already has announced he wants to be the Democrats' choice but longtime political observers reckon the 32-year-old Grand Rapids attorney as a longshot at best.

O'Hara, a 17-year veteran of Congress, is expected to formally announce within the next few weeks his candidacy for the seat held by the retiring Sen. Philip Hart. He has been touring the state, talking with party chieftains, contacting financial sources and huddling with labor leaders. O'Hara has done the most work so far, experts say, but nobody can lock up an election this early.

On the verge of jumping into the fight is U.S. Rep. Riegle of Flint, a young, attractive and energetic campaigner, while well-known figures like Austin and Kelley are still testing winds.

O'Hara has political drawbacks — especially if Republicans come up with a charismatic candidate. He is not exciting, observers say, and is not well known outside political circles and his Macomb County 12th Congressional district.

But he is a mainstream, old-line Democrat with long and intimate ties throughout the party — ties that Riegle, a converted Republican, does not have. And he has much support from organized labor.

"O'Hara has longtime party credentials and is an outstanding congressman," said state House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, who has not yet formally supported a candidate. "With his credentials, he's got to be considered a favorite."

He's not charismatic, but he's just a solid guy that over a long campaign will come on well."

O'Hara's labor backing was indicated by Tom Turner, president of the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO who said: "O'Hara probably would get the highest marks of any prospective candidate mentioned thus far."

Big labor — the state AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers — may save their real clout for the general election, however.

"The position I have to take is that all of them are friends of ours," said state AFL-CIO President William Marshall. "To get involved in the primary could be counter-productive in the general election."

But, he said, "Jim O'Hara obviously has a lot of friends in the AFL-CIO in particular. He might have a little more following at the moment."

Insiders also note O'Hara's early groundwork may reduce available money or support for later candidates.

Like O'Hara, Riegle is traveling the state, renewing Democratic friendships and gauging his support. Democrats point out that Riegle, who is often mentioned as O'Hara's toughest opponent, attracted labor support even as a Republican.

"Riegle's friendship with labor, especially in Genesee County, has clout with Doug Fraser," said state Sen. Dale Kildee, D-Flint, referring to the UAW vice president. "He's better known statewide than O'Hara."

That leaves Kelley and Austin. Both are widely known because of their state-wide office, and the entrance of either into the race would have a major effect on the battle.

"My opinion is that neither will go," said a top Democrat. "With a guy like O'Hara in there they can't wait on the sidelines until the first of the year and then jump in."

But Kelley insists reports he is backing away from the race were only rumor.

"I'm really not leaning either way," he said. "I have more time to make a decision and set up an organization. The crucial decision time for me is November or December."

Kelley says he has a "nucleus of an organization" left over from his losing 1972 Senate race against U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin and his campaigns for attorney general. "I hope that if I become a candidate the others would get out of the race," he said.

Marshall said that, "as of now, if Frank was in it, Kelley would be the front runner."

Austin's intentions are equally hard to gauge, but some Democrats say he's leaning toward running. He has been out of the state and unavailable for comment.

"O'Hara has done the most groundwork, but that's not to say he'll be out ahead in the end," a top party leader summed up. "Kelley and Austin have a lot of chips to call on, and Riegle is close to the UAW in his home area."

Otterbacher insists he is getting encouraging reactions to his early campaign but he is regarded in some quarters as a bright, aggressive campaigner with nothing to lose — and who probably will.

As a House member and then a Senator, Otterbacher has been aligned with the most liberal of young state lawmakers. He has specialized in mental and public health and social services, but says he is becoming skeptical of the traditional liberal approach to social problems.

"We're enslaving a whole new group of people with welfare," he said. "We have to move expectations back. We have to be realistic and analytic about programs that do violence to people."

Otterbacher said his job now is four-fold: To establish local organizations; do some sidewalk handshaking; meet with key financial people, and spend time with the media.

It can be frustrating work.

Homosexual Seeks Church Acceptance

By JOSEPH B. BAKER

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — A year ago, Brian McNaught was a rising young journalist in the Catholic press. As an award-winning reporter and columnist for The Michigan Catholic, the weekly newspaper of the Archdiocese of Detroit, McNaught had a reputation for being "the nice Catholic boy."

Many of the newspaper's 104,000 readers viewed him as a liberal, a romantic, an idealist — after all, he wrote in defense of such things as amnesty, the United Farm Workers, civil rights and the ordination of women.

But he was a respected writer, and thousands of Catholic mothers were giving his weekly column to their sons with the advice: "Read it and learn."

Today, those same mothers probably shudder when they read a story about McNaught in their newspaper and change stations when their sons tune him in on a television or radio program.

McNaught, a graduate of Marquette University and the son of a respected Birmingham family, has left his "closet" — and says he has never been happier.

Publicly acknowledging his homosexuality last year, McNaught, at 27, has been thrown into the national limelight as a leading thorn in the side of Catholic bishops.

That limelight has cost him his job, his bank account, some "friends" and his church.

But McNaught, determined not to let his church drop him, is challenging it, in his words, "To recognize itself as the greatest oppressor of the gay community in the history of man."

McNaught's story began June 20, 1974, when he wrote a column criticizing the Catholic Church for its stand on homosexuality. Subsequently, that column and the activities that followed got him fired.

A few weeks after the column appeared, a Detroit daily newspaper interviewed him and quoted him as the leader of the local chapter of "Dignity," a national Catholic organization for homosexuals.

McNaught decided that, for him, it was "time to come out."

In the column, McNaught wrote:

"Homosexuality is no more abnormal to the human condition than being left-handed, and the expression of the condition is no more sinful than the use of one's left hand ...

"It seems infinitely cruel to me for the church to tell the homosexual that in the eyes of God he is abnormal, not natural, not basically good, and that his pursuit of love is automatically 'greedily sinful.'"

McNaught, meeting recently with representatives of Saginaw's gay community, urged support for Dignity, which now has chapters in 22 states.

He told of his column being dropped from The Michigan Catholic shortly after Margaret Cronyn took over the newspaper's editorship.

Although he said he was retained as a reporter, McNaught decided to fight the decision on his column.

Support came from around the country, but the opposition was just as strong.

Cardinal John F. Deardoff issued statements calling homosexuality arrested sexual development and a sin, and would not get involved in the dispute over McNaught's column reinstatement.

"After many days of prayer, I decided what was needed was the strongest action that I could take," recalled McNaught. "Given our religious tradition, that action had to be a fast — a fast on water. No food, no drink."

Twenty-four days later, with McNaught 24 pounds lighter, a breakthrough "victory" came — mainly through the work of two priests, the Rev. Msgr. Clement Kern and the Rev. Sam Campbell.

"The victory," says McNaught, "was that the archdiocese recognized the pain of an oppressed people by writing a public letter promising to work to root out structure and attitudes which discriminate against the homosexual as a person."

But McNaught says the fight is not over.

"It will take years to reverse the Church's procreative theology," he contends. "It still believes homosexuality is wrong, and only in Detroit and a few other cities have the bishops agreed to work towards an end to discrimination."

Today, a year later, McNaught has regained his lost weight. Although unemployed and nearly penniless, he still is "working" fulltime. He says he has been unable to collect unemployment benefits because of The Michigan Catholic's "religious status."

A few dollars flow in from writing assignments and speaking engagements, and there are contributions to keep him going.

McNaught says the change of attitude towards homosexuality by many moral theologians,

GAY CATHOLIC: A bright future was ahead of Brian McNaught, 27, of Saginaw, Mich., until he admitted last year to being a homosexual. He now works for "Dignity," a Catholic organization for homosexuals. (AP Wirephoto) psychiatrists, psychologists and others has helped gays.

"But the public acceptance will not come until the Church changes its stand," he adds. "The public must be made to see how contradictory the Church's position really is."

"How can the Catholic Church morally 'work against' civil rights? That is what it is doing. It is supporting discrimination against homosexuals in housing, employment and every other area of their existence."

"We want to change public opinion toward homosexuality the same as it was changed toward birth control. After being made aware of the contradictory position of the Church on that, the public began to have doubts on what the hierarchy was telling them."

"As a result, the majority of Catholics now practice birth control, and although the Church still is formally against it, priests are telling the people to do what is best for them."

Dr. Bouton Sowers Will Open Office

Bouton Sowers, M.D., is coming out of retirement.

The former Benton Harbor surgeon will open an office for diagnosis and consultation in Sawyer, on the Red Arrow highway.

Although Dr. Sowers is certified by the American Board of General Surgeons, he will not perform surgery. He will conduct what he describes as an "office practice."

Member of a prominent, early-day family in Benton Harbor, Dr. Sowers was one of the Twin Cities' most active physicians for many years.

He left the area in 1963 to take a post with the U.S. Veterans Administration, serving eight years. He retired in 1973.

Dr. and Mrs. Sowers now reside in Lakeside.

Evert, Goolagong Meeting Today In U.S. Open Final

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — There will never be another Billie Jean King. Her flair and fortitude have made her a tennis force that won't soon be forgotten.

But today's title match in the U.S. Open Championships between top-seeded Chris Evert and No. 4 Evonne Goolagong is considered the test to tell who will pick up the mantle Ms. King, last year's winner, discarded at age 31 after winning Wimbledon six times and Forest Hills four — the two tournaments that make queens and kings of commoners in a sport once reserved for royalty.

The men's reign, because of the tremendous depth of talent, is more tentative.

In today's semifinals, defending champion Jimmy Connors is favored over fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg, but it is a loss-up, between Spain's Manuel Orantes, seeded third, and Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, seeded second.

Miss Evert, who for three years was America's teen-age princess in tennis shoes, at age 20 has a slight edge over an older but more erratic Miss Goolagong.

"I think both of us know we have a chance of beating each other," Evert said of their chase for the $25,000 first prize from a record total purse of $309,430. "I can't let her get me into the groove of fiddling around with the ball. I can't let her make me play her game."

Admittedly, Miss Goolagong has the statistical edge in the two tournaments that count. She was once a winner and twice a runner-up at Wimbledon and twice a runner-up at Forest Hills. Miss Evert's best showing is once a winner and once a runner-up at Wimbledon but never before past the semifinals at Forest Hills.

However, in Evert-Goolagong career meetings, Chris leads Evonne 11-9. Their historic first meeting was in the 1972 Wimbledon semifinals when Miss Goolagong won in three sets. In the semifinals here last year, Evonne prevailed over Chris 6-0, 6-7, 6-3 in a two-day rain-delayed thriller.

But both of those big ones were on grass. Now they are playing on clay, the surface of the future, and Miss Evert, whipped Miss Goolagong on the powdery stuff 6-1, 6-1 in Florida earlier this year.

In addition, Miss Evert has not lost a match, or a tour-namment, on clay in more than two years, when Miss Goolagong beat her 6-2, 7-5 in Cincinnati. Going into today's final, Miss Evert has won 16 tournaments and 83 matches on clay.

Her latest triumph was Friday when she eliminated her doubles partner, Martina Navratilova, 6-4, 6-4 after the third-seeded Czechoslovakian was rattled by a questionable line call when she led 4-3 in the second set. The call was not reversed even though the linesman walked over to look at the mark left by the ball.

In the other women's semifinal, Miss Goolagong, the 24-year-old Australian, struggled to a 7-5 first-set victory over former champion Virginia Wade and then cruised past the No. 2 seed from Britain 6-1 in the second.

Three-Run Homer Beats Phils

Thornton Gets Even

From Associated Press
Mike Vail of the New York Mets and Andy Thornton of the Chicago Cubs each had a score to settle.

Vail used to be the property of the St. Louis Cardinals while the Philadelphia Phillies used to sign Thornton's paychecks. But after five years with those organizations, Vail and Thornton were sent packing. Their services were no longer needed.

Friday night, Vail and Thornton got opportunities to say "I told you so" to their old employers, and they spoke loudly with their bats.

Vail had a two-run homer and an RBI single in leading the Mets over the Cardinals 5-2 and Thornton smashed a three-run homer in the Cubs' 4-3 first-game victory over the Phillies. Philadelphia won the second game 5-3.

Elsewhere in the National League East, the Pittsburgh Pirates split a two-night doubleheader with the Montreal Expos, losing the opener 4-3 in 10 innings but winning the second game 5-2. The Pirates now lead the Phillies by five games and the Mets and Cardinals by 1 1/2 games in the NL East.

In the NL West the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Francisco Giants 4-3 and lowered their magic number for clinching the division title to four games; the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed the Atlanta Braves 5-2, and the Houston Astros edged the San Diego Padres 3-1.

It didn't take much genius to push the Expos' winning run across in the 10th inning of the first game. Pittsburgh reliever Kent Tekulve surrendered four walks, two intentional, and with only four bases, the last one meant victory for the Expos.

In the nightcap, Willie Stargell smashed his 21st home run of the season to give Pittsburgh the split.

Pete Rose reached a milestone and Cesar Geronimo got a lot of mileage out of a ground single as the Reds took another step toward the division flag. Any combination of Cincinnati victories and Los Angeles losses adding to four will end one of baseball's most lopsided races.

Rose, appearing in his 2,000th game, slammed a two-run homer and Geronimo legged out a single to deep short that glanced from third baseman Bruce Miller to shortstop Johnnie Lethister, whose throw just missed catching Geronimo, as the winning run was crossing the plate.

"Sometimes you have to be lucky," Geronimo said.

Burt Hooton scattered eight hits for his ninth straight victory and Lee Lacy and Steve Yeager walloped two-run homers for the Dodgers.

Hooton, 15-9, struck out eight and walked just one as he set a NL high for consecutive victories this season.

Cesar Cedeno led off the eighth with a bunt single, moved to second on a bunt, took third on an infield error and raced home with the winning run on Enos Cabell's ground ball.

Stabler Sparkles In Oakland Victory

Lefty Keeps Raiders Unbeaten

DALLAS (AP) — Oakland Coach John Madden may have established a new world record for understatement in the wake of quarterback Kenny Stabler's devastation of the Dallas Cowboys Friday night.

"All Stabler did was complete six of eight passes for 171 yards and two touchdowns in a 31-20 National Football League rout of the Cowboys to keep Oakland one of the two remaining unbeaten teams in preseason.

The deadly lefty has now thrown seven touchdown passes in the exhibition season and completed more than 65 percent of his attempts. He hasn't thrown an interception.

Madden said after Stabler had played just a half against Dallas in the nationally televised game. "Kenny is improving. This is his first year when he has had a full training camp. We look for great things from him this year."

Madden added, "This is probably the best we've played in the preseason."

Stabler got Oakland out to a 21-0 second quarter lead. He rifled a 49-yard pass to Cliff Branch to set up Clarence Davis' two-yard scoring plunge and followed that act with a 30-yard shot to Branch for a touchdown and a 53-yard scoring loss to Charlie Smith.

Dallas, now 1-4 in preseason, rallied on Charles Young's one-yard touchdown plunge and his 16-yard reception of a touchdown pass from Roger Staubach.

With Stabler resting on the sidelines, George Blanda kicked a 40-yard field goal and Pete Banaszak bolted 10 yards for a touchdown to clinch Oakland's fifth victory.

Dallas could answer in the second half with only rookie Scott Laidlaw's two-yard scoring run.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry admitted, "Oakland is ready to start the season. They have been ever since the preseason started and they should certainly battle Pittsburgh in the American Football Conference.

Oakland closes the preseason against Los Angeles next Thursday night, while Dallas meets defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh in Texas Stadium Sept. 13.

No-Windup Pete Downs Red Sox

Meyer, Horton Tiger Stars; Dent Paces White Sox

From Associated Press
You don't have to wind up the Pete Broberg doll. It works better the other way.

Since he changed his motion to a no-windup delivery, the right-hander has been delivering better for the Milwaukee Brewers. Friday night, he pitched a 6-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The change in motion seems to have helped him make fewer mistakes in his delivery and that has helped his control," said Boston's Rico Petrocelli. "With his velocity, his ball moves and it's tough to hit the ball off him."

Broberg adopted his new motion after consultation with the Milwaukee coaching staff.

Before Friday night's six-hitter against the American League's East leaders, Broberg had three complete games and an excellent 2.81 earned run average in his four starts since adopting the new delivery.

The victory slowed Boston's pennant express, cutting the Red Sox' lead over the Baltimore Orioles to 6 1/2 games. The Orioles cut into Boston's big lead by taking a doubleheader from the New York Yankees, 5-4 and 2-1.

Sixth Lezcano's two-run homer capped a three-run first inning for Milwaukee and Broberg took care of the rest. Carl Yastrzemski singled home a first-inning run for the Red Sox and Fred Lynn followed with a single, but then Broberg, 12-13, retired 18 consecutive batters.

Al Bumbry drove in two runs and Ken Singleton belted a solo homer, leading Baltimore's first-game victory over New York. Doug Decina's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning led Baltimore's triumph in the second game.

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers bombed the Cleveland Indians 11-3; the Chicago White Sox checked the Minnesota Twins 3-2; the Kansas City Royals beat the California Angels 5-2, and the Texas Rangers whipped the Oakland A's 4-3.

A three-run double by Dan Meyer and Willie Horton's 32nd home run keyed a seven-run fifth inning, leading Detroit over Cleveland. Horton later added a two-run homer as the Tigers padded their lead in the ninth.

Bucky Dent' wind-blown fly ball dropped into left field for a two-run triple in the fifth inning and helped Wilbur Wood and Chicago beat Minnesota.

George Brett and Al Cowens hit run-scoring singles in the eighth inning, triggering Kansas City over California. Brett ripped five hits and knocked in four runs.

Roy Smalley's run-scoring single capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning, carrying Texas over Oakland. The loss cut Oakland's lead to five games over Kansas City in the West.

Hole-In-One Club Probed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Manhattan District Attorney's office is investigating a golf organization that offered fat payoffs to members who scored a hole in one. The Associated Press has learned.

The Hole-In-One Club went out of business several months ago although some members were never notified and did not learn about the organization's problems until they attempted to collect their winnings for scoring an ace.

A spokesman for the DA refused to confirm or deny his office's involvement, saying only, "We don't comment on pending investigations."

It would not be proper for me to comment," said Michael Schlanger, a Manhattan attorney who is representing the club. "There is an investigation pending and any investigation can lead to legal action."

Schlanger confirmed that the DA's office was looking into the club's affairs. "They want to have some questions answered and I will answer them," he said. "I don't think there's any basis (for them) to proceed."

"If it was only a question of a company going out of business, I'd be happy to talk to you. But it may be more than that."

The New York-based club was apparently the last of several such organizations that offered premiums of cash awards and trips to members who connected on the golf rarity.

"They started around 1960," said George Grady, an administrative assistant for the United States Golf Association. "They offered prizes that were improper for amateurs to accept."

The USGA prohibits amateurs from accepting more than $250 in merchandise and no cash. The Hole-In-One Club's prizes included $200 in cash and expense-paid trips for two to affiliated golfing resorts.

"They were unhappy with our policy for testing amateur status," said Grady. "We had quite a bit of correspondence from golfers who were concerned about the prizes involved. We also followed up people mentioned in their newsletter. They felt we were playing detective on their winners, but you can't violate rules."

Golf Series Will Change

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus has mixed emotions about the impending change in the format for the World Series of Golf, but the other three competitors in this last of the four-man shows applaud the new, expanded line-up.

"In a way I'm sorry to see it change," Nicklaus said before teeing off today as the heavy favorite in the exclusive field of the world's major title-holders. "I think it's right that there be a tournament for the four major tournament winners," he said. "I think they should get together like this."

"But, unfortunately, the press and public haven't attached the significance to it that it deserves."

"It's more a television show than a golf tournament. And it should be a very significant tournament."

"Part of that is due to the fact that it's always played here at Firestone. Now, I'm not knocking Firestone. The facilities are great and the people treat you great. But they have a lot of tournaments here. If only the World Series were played here, maybe it'd be different. And maybe the players would attach more importance to it.

"It's been declining in interest for the past few years. Now, with this change in format and a change in location, it very well could develop into a significant event."

For the last 14 years, the World Series has been staged at the famed Firestone Country Club as a 36-hole four-man tournament, bringing together the winners of the four major events — the Masters, U.S. and British opens and the PGA.

Beginning next year the tournament will move to an unannounced site, probably changing sites every year, and its format will be expanded to include about 25-30 players including at least five foreign champions.

Controversial Prep Grid Playoffs Start This Season

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in modern Michigan history, the state's high school football champions will be crowned this year as a result of playoffs.

The winners may not be the same team deemed No. 1 in the polls, but whoever wins, playoff opponents and opponents will find out who'll be able to say, "I told you so."

Results of the first games have already been fed into a computer in Lansing. Upper Peninsula teams have been competing for two weeks, while northern Lower Peninsula teams got under way this weekend.

The rating process will be fully primed next weekend when the season officially opens for the bulk of the state's teams, located in the southern Lower Peninsula.

"You're darned if you do and darned if you don't," said Allen W. Bush, commenting on the establishment of a playoff system.

Bush, director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association which governs prep sports in the state, indicated he personally was in favor of grid playoffs.

"It gives schools not in leagues something to shoot for," he told a meeting of the Associated Press Sports Editors.

The main drawback seems to be that, according to the point system devised last year, teams will be punished pointwise for playing teams of a lower class.

For instance, if a Class B team beats two Class C teams in its conference, it gets fewer playoff points than if the losers were in Class B. If they were A teams, the winner would get more points.

"The big question is: is it worth taking aim at breaking up leagues just to be one of the four teams in the playoffs?" Bush asked.

Leagues with schools of more than one class could break up because playoff-minded schools may want to only play opponents in the same or higher class.

Bush said 73 per cent of the schools responding to queries on the playoffs said they wanted them.

School athletic officials are responsible for mailing in a form each week with team results. The association will tabulate results and, beginning Oct. 8, publish lists of the top 10 teams in each class in each of four regions.

The regions are divided according to the quarterfinal playoffs: They are fairly equal geographically and in the number of schools.

Five state sports editors and writers will serve as agents to see that the association gets all scores from their assigned areas. They are Jack Moss of the Kalamazoo Gazette; Ed Senyszko, Lansing State Journal; Dean Howe, Flint Journal;

Joe Walker, Saginaw News; and John Carlisle, Sault Ste. Marie Evening News.

"It's not necessarily the four best teams in the state" that will compete in the semifinals, Bush said, "but the best in each region.... There is controversy because of this, naturally."

Birmingham Brother Rice, which finished first in the AP Class A poll last season, wouldn't have qualified for the playoffs because it finished second to Plymouth Salem in its region in the so-called "paper playoffs," run last year as a prelude to this season's operation.

Some critics have said that, under the system, the unbeaten, unscored upon Saginaw Arthur Hill team of 1973 also would not have qualified.

"A point system can never be completely equitable," Bush said.

Points for determining regional champions in each class will be awarded as follows:

- 80 points for beating a Class A team.
- 64 points for beating a Class B team.
- 48 points for beating a Class C team.
- 32 points for beating a Class D team.

In ties, points are divided.

A school will get eight points for each game won by an opponent it defeated and one point for each game won by a team that defeated it.

Total points are divided by the number of games played to determine final ranking.

The semifinal games will be played Saturday, Nov. 15. The Class A games will be at Birmingham and Lansing, Class B at Battle Creek and Midland, Class C at Grand Rapids and Mount Pleasant, and Class D at Traverse City and Lansing.

Finals will be Saturday, Nov. 22. Class A and D will be at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, while Class B and C will be at Central Michigan in Mount Pleasant.

Michigan AP sports editors voted to continue their poll. The final poll will be tabulated after the playoff championships just as the final college poll is run after the bowl games.

Therefore, there may be two "state champions" — one in the playoffs and another from the poll.

In 1989 the Michigan Interscholastic Football League, according to the book "Athletics in Michigan High School" by Louis Forsythe, conducted the first state playoffs.

Michigan was divided into six sections. Section champions played off until the two survivors met on Thanksgiving Day. Pontiac beat Plainfield 6-5 (touchdowns were worth five points then), reports Forsythe, brother of the late Charles Forsythe, long time high school athletic association director.

Isperming won the state title for the next three years, beating Michigan Military, Kalamazoo and Benton Harbor, which came back to win in 1903 over Escanaba. Escanaba, Ann Arbor, Detroit Central, and Muskegon were other early winners until 1912. No games are recorded after 1913.

Roadrunners Power Again

Four All-Americans Lead National Champs

DOWAGIAC — Southwestern Michigan College looks like a national cross country power again this fall, even without John Roscoe.

Coach Ron Gunn is counting on returning all-Americans Arnold Jackson, Tom Ellspermann, Steve Serna and Joe Ofsansky to "kick" the Roadrunners to a third straight junior college national championship.

SMC also has promising freshmen to help make up for the loss of the record-smashing Roscoe, who has graduated and taken his talents to the University of Kansas.

Jackson, who hails from Illinois, finished 11th in the national meet a year ago, while Serna was 18th. Ellspermann 23rd and Ofsansky 25th. Serna comes from Wisconsin, Ellspermann from St. Joseph and Ofsansky from Indiana. All are sophomores.

Another southwestern Michigan high school product back with Ellspermann to help the Roadrunners is Steve Dunn of Hartford, who was consistently one of the top seven SMC runners last fall as a freshman.

Southwestern Michigan College could have won the national title last year, without Roscoe, but Gunn cautions against thinking that means an automatic championship again this fall.

"You don't know how much influence a guy (Roscoe) like that has on the rest of the team," states Gunn.

"We are going to be in there, but you never know what other junior colleges are doing. I've heard stories that some are going to foreign talent, and that could hurt us."

Incoming freshmen like Tony Rodier, the Wisconsin high school two-mile champ last spring, and John Beedy, a Indiana prep two-mile and cross country standout, will help make the Roadrunners contenders.

"It's probably the best 18 we've ever had through and through," continues Gunn. "I'm really impressed with the overall depth. There are a lot of freshmen here that I think are really going to come."

In addition to the two consecutive national titles, the Roadrunners have also captured five straight state titles while under Gunn's coaching.

Jackson is given the best chance to unseat SMC at the state level. It returns Rob Bostater, who rates as this fall's top state junior college runner.

The Roadrunners opened camp this week with twice-a-day workouts. They'll host the Indiana Striders and the Golden Triangle Track Clubs in their first meet Sept. 13.

SMC will also host the state meet Oct. 31 at its Hampshire Country Club course.

Mann Two-Stroke

Dallas Open Leader

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran Carol Mann took a two-stroke lead over the field into today's second round of the Dallas Civitan Open, a title she claimed in 1969.

Miss Mann fashioned a five-under-par 67 Friday to wrest the lead from three earlier finishers tied at 69.

Tied for second in the big field at this $46,000 tournament was last year by JoAnne Carner, were Joyce Kasmierski, Betsy Cullen and Sandra Spuzich.

Miss Mann, winner of three titles already this year, admitted she was confident and fired up.

"Every time I get on an airplane to go play, I expect to win. I just play my game and it should be good enough," said the Ladies PGA president.

Miss Mann carded five birdies with putts of 20, 25, 8 and 10 feet twice. On the final hole, she was startled by lightning which struck nearby but calmly knocked in her eight-footer.

Miss Mann hit 15 greens and needed just 28 putts. She said her putting was "just super."

Seven golfers were bunched at 70, including Laura Baugh, Denver winner Judy Rankin, and Dallas amateur Nancy Hager.

Tied with 71 were 11 golfers, including Sandra Haynie, top money winner Sandra Palmer, and Donna Caponi Young.

Three players were even par — Mrs. Carner, Kathy Whitworth and Roberta Albers.

The final 18 holes will be played Sunday over the par-72 Brookhaven Country Club.

Noble Rogue Wins

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP) — With 2-5 favorite Bonfish scratched by the state veterinarian at the starting gate, Noble Rogue was an easy 2 1/2 length winner in the $40,000 Grand Circuit State for 3-year-old trotters at Wolverine Raceway Friday night.

Forcing a recall of the start when he refused to come up to the gate for driver Stanley Dancer, Bonfish was checked by Dr. Earl Millman and found to be bleeding heavily from both nostrils. The Hambletonian winner of one week ago was immediately scratched from the race with what is the equine equivalent of a respiratory infection in humans.

Dancer said Bonfish had been bleeding very lightly during his pre-race warm up, but that he did not think it serious.

Tagge Released

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Until Friday morning, Jerry Tagge had hoped to quarterback the Green Bay Packers in Kansas City tonight. Now he plans a lonely vigil in his apartment, hoping another club will call.

"It's something you don't look forward to, but it's something I guess we all think about," said the legendary former star at Green Bay West High School, contemplating his sudden release by the Packers.

Lawton Back In Business, But Gridiron Time Lost

LAWTON — The Blue Devils are back in the football business.

After a millage defeat, it looked like Lawton would be just a spectator in the Southwestern Athletic conference this season but the citizens came to the rescue by raising the needed funds for this year.

But the team lost some valuable practice time. "We lost two weeks of conditioning and one full week of regular practice," says head coach Walt Hitchcock.

Lawton has nine of last year's starters returning from a team that was 1-7, scored just 28 points and gave up 247 more. "Everything needed work coming into the season," comments Hitchcock.

Anchoring the all senior line is tackle Damon DeVries (5-11, 245), an all-conference pick last year. Others returning include tackle Craig Addington (5-8, 255), guard Sean Coudy (5-8, 180), center Epi Martinez (5-4, 155) and ends Dale Knitfel (6-0, 165) and Kurt Smith (5-11, 175).

Senior Kevin Burke (6-0, 145), a halfback and tailback last season, will be the field general with senior tailback Tony Mendoza (5-5, 190) and senior fullback Mike Woodruff (5-10, 175) behind him.

Career Clips

Sophomore middle guard Vinton Singer of Dowagiac has given up football at Northern Michigan University for personal reasons, according to a NMU sports information report. Singer played as a freshman but did not letter, then dropped from the squad after this year's first week of practice.

Lions Try Veterans Against Cincy Today

DETROIT (AP) — In a change of strategy, from last week's game, Detroit Lions coach Rick Forzano planned to send a squad of veterans into today's pre-season contest with the Cincinnati Bengals.

"We got out younger players in action at Washington — now we're back to using regulars and hope we can profit from our experiences of the pre-season," Forzano said.

The only rookie in the lineup was guard Lynn Boden, who was shifted to the right side in place of injured Bob Kowalkowski.

Forzano said Greg Landry was to start at quarterback, but added that number three quarterback Joe Reed would get a good opportunity to play.

Reed hasn't seen much action for nearly a year. He started two games for the San Francisco 49ers in 1973 and four games last year before being traded to Detroit. He sat on the Lions' bench for the final eight weeks of the season and never played a minute until he got in for a quarter in this year's exhibition game against Oakland.

"It's been a long time, but it hasn't done anything to my confidence," Reed said. "I feel I can play. But the important thing now is to show I'm not just another guy. I've got to show some evidence that they can go to me and win some games."

Reed should get a better crack at it this year. With Bill Munson out nursing a bruised collarbone, Reed has become the team's number two quarterback. The only other contender for the job, Sam Wyche, was released from the team last week.

were set as the running backs.

Defensively, Herb Orvis was to start if his leg held up. Otherwise, Billy Howard would match up at tackle with Larry Hand. Charlie West was to handle the cornerback spot and Mike Weger was to play as a safety.

Cincinnati, which has beaten Detroit four straight years in exhibition games, is looking to up increase record to 3-3. The Lions hoped for their second victory in five starts.

Record rainfall made it a difficult week for the Lions. The team was only able to get in two good practice sessions as the soggy weather forced Forzano to retreat to the Oakland University gym for a final practice.

"We've been in the gym so much we ought to play basketball," complained Frietas. "It has been a rough week," Forzano agreed.

Owls Rebuilding Grid Program Penn State Tests Temple

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Penn State and Temple haven't met on the football field since 1963 and there was a time — not too long ago — when Joe Paterno didn't care if he never had to bother with the Owls.

"I thought when the series was scheduled that it would not be good for us," the Penn State coach says. "I was wrong. Temple has done a great job of rebuilding its program and it should be a good series for both schools."

The intrastate rivalry resumes tonight at Philadelphia's Franklin Field with Penn State, an annual member of The Associated Press Top Ten, sixth in the preseason rankings while Temple has barely cracked the Top Twenty once — and only once — just before a 14-game winning streak that came to end midway through the 1974 campaign.

Wayne Hardin has done a great job at Temple, Paterno says. "They have become a very fine major college football team."

Penn State is the only member of the Top Ten scheduled for action when the college football season gets under way today, although two teams from the Second Ten were down for afternoon games — No. 13 North Carolina State entertaining East Carolina and No. 17 Maryland hosting Villanova.

The rest of a slim daytime schedule schedule finds Pitt at Georgia, Lamar at Houston, William & Mary at North Carolina, Western Michigan at Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan at Ball State.

Other night games are Mississippi at Baylor, Mississippi

State at Memphis State, Southern Methodist at Wake Forest, Texas-El Paso at San Diego State, Fullerton State at Fresno State, Southwestern Louisiana at Long Beach State, Pacific at Northeast Louisiana, Western Carolina at Toledo, North Texas State at Texas-Arlington, Drake at New Mexico State, West Texas State at Wichita State, Western Kentucky at Dayton, Northwestern Louisiana at Arkansas State and Marshall at Akron.

On Monday night in Birmingham, Alabama, ranked No. 2 behind defending national champion Oklahoma, faces Missouri in a nationally televised game (ABC-TV, 9 p.m. EDT).

Baylor, the nation's Cinderella team in '74 when the Bears fooled everybody and won the Southwest Conference crown for the first time in 50 years, entertains Mississippi, which hopes to be the Cinderella team of 1975 but has been picked to bring up the rear of the Southeastern Conference for the second year in a row. "We had a lot of fine football players graduate, but we have a lot of fine football players returning," says Baylor's Grant Teaff, who isn't buying the preseason ratings that list the Bears anywhere from third on down in the SWC.

"And we brought in as fine a crop of freshmen as I've ever seen, and some of these youngsters are going to see lots of playing time. They're quality. We could have another fine football team."

Bell Signs Cullars, Foster To Help Sagging Defense

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Bell, statistically the worst defensive team in the World Football League, has made a couple of acquisitions in the hopes of fending better tonight against the Charlotte Hornets.

Philadelphia, which has given up 984 yards rushing and 823 in the air in compiling a 2-3 record in the WFL's Eastern Division, signed defensive end Willie Cullars and defensive back Rod Foster on Friday.

Cullars, whom the Philadelphia Eagles selected in the seventh round of the 1974 draft, was a part-time starter last year with the National Football League club. He was released last month.

Foster was a starting cornerback with the WFL's Florida Blazers last season and was the runnerup in punt returns.

Charlotte, now 2-2 after losing its first two, has a strong ground game anchored by Don Highsmith — who gained 89 yards in a 33-14 victory last weekend over Jacksonville — and a solid passing attack with Tom Sherman at quarterback.

In tonight's other WFL games, Jacksonville plays at Shreveport and Birmingham is at Portland. Southern California travels to San Antonio on Sunday.

Hawaii and Memphis played this afternoon.

Jacksonville, 2-2, has a solid attack with George Mira at quarterback and running backs Tommy Reamon and Alfred Haywood, but the Express has had trouble hanging onto the ball, ranking last in possession, 44.8 per cent. Virgil Robinson, 305 yards on 71 carries so far this year for Shreveport, 2-3, will test a Jacksonville defense that ranks ninth against the run.

Birmingham QB Matthew Reed appears finally to have recovered fully from a hip pointer and could be looking to get some teeth in the Vulcans' air attack — they have run the ball nearly 60 per cent of the time.

Portland has the No. 2 quarterback in the league in Don Horn, who has a 61.5 per cent completion average.

Southern California, 4-1, and San Antonio, 4-2, were considered the league's two most powerful teams at the beginning of the season.

The Sun's offensive weapons are impressive — Pat Haden, the WFL's leading quarterback; Anthony Davis, its leading rusher, and receivers Chuck Bradley, Terry Lindsey and Dave Williams.

Schroeder Tops Southern With Confident Comeback

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Veteran John Schroeder, who quit the pro golf tour in disgust two months ago, has regained his confidence and touch in two short days after becoming the leader in the $100,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

"Nobody can catch me if I continue putting the way I have for these two days," said the 29-year-old Schroeder after his 66 Friday gave him a nine-under-par 131 and a two-stroke edge for the $20,000 first prize entering today's third round.

"I'm going to be nervous since I haven't been in this position in quite a while," said the smiling Schroeder.

The six-year veteran of the tour captured the U.S. Match Play Tournament two years ago for his only triumph.

He also led this tournament in 1973 after the second round but faded on the final day to eighth place.

"I've done it before and that has to help me over the weekend," said the son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder. He noted he hasn't earned a cent on the tour since mid-May.

"I just wasn't enjoying it anymore," said Schroeder explaining why he abruptly quit the tour to take a six-week vacation before returning three weeks ago.

"It just wasn't fun anymore. I just didn't want to go to work anymore so I went home," he said. "I look pictures of myself swinging and slowly put my game back together again."

The resident of La Jolla, Calif., who had earned less than $14,000 before his vacation, was fortunate even to make it into this tournament.

He had to qualify Tuesday and barely made it after a playoff.

Schroeder, who had an opening-round 65, called his play Friday beautiful.

He closed with a flourish over the par-70, 6,971-yard, Green Island Country Club course, birdying his final three holes.

In second place was tour rookie Alan Tapie, who shot a 66-133.

A pair of Birmingham buddies, Hubert Gren and Mac McLendon, the co-leader Thursday with Schroeder, was another stroke back at 134. Gren fired a 66 and McLendon a 69.

Defending champion Forrest Fessler managed a 71-144 and just barely made the cut. Former Masters champion Tommy Aaron had the day's best round, 64, and was at 141.

Many of golf's top names are not entered here. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Tom Watson, and Lou Graham, the winners of the season's major tournaments, were competing in the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, over the weekend.

Ruling May Help Buckeyes

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University football coach Denny Stolz says a court ruling on the size of college teams may help Ohio State in its battle with the Spartans next week.

"That's got to definitely help Ohio State," Stolz said of the decision by U.S. District Court Judge Sam Pointer to permit college teams to each dress 60 players for football games.

Pointer granted an injunction against a new NCAA ruling that limited traveling squads to 48 players.

"Woody Hayes would have had to make some key decisions about personnel he'd be bringing for the game when he could only have brought 48 players," Stolz said. "Now that decision will be easier if he can add 12 more players."

The Buckeyes and Spartans collide next Saturday in the Big Ten and season opener. Ohio State, ranked fourth in the preseason poll, and MSU, ranked 12th, both are given chances at the Big Ten title.

Stolz said he doubted whether MSU would travel with 60 players because of previous commitments for plane space. He said the ruling was "just exactly the opposite" of the approach Big Ten schools were using to save money.

"It just floors me that we spent all this time trying to save money and now it looks like it's going to cost more," he said.

Judge Sets 'Buffer Zones' Along Boston Bus Routes

BOSTON (AP) — A federal judge has moved to set up buffer zones along school bus routes in an effort to assure the safety of public school children when schools open Monday under a new desegregation order.

In an order issued Friday, Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. banned the gathering of three or more persons threatening to engage in violence along the bus routes.

The order handed down in U.S. District Court also prohibits gatherings of three or more persons within 100 feet of public schools and bans access to school grounds to all but authorized persons and the parents of kindergarten and first-grade pupils.

Dismissal Grievance Is Filed By Robey

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Ames Robey has filed a Civil Service grievance over his dismissal as director of the Center for Forensic Psychiatry at Ypsilanti.

In his grievance, filed Friday, Robey also charged his dismissal was a foregone conclusion as the Department of Mental Health sought a scapegoat for recent escapes and releases of potentially dangerous patients.

Robey was fired a week ago by Dr. Donald Smith, acting director of the mental health department, after a state investigation concluded Robey was a poor administrator.

Robey had 10 days to file a grievance. The case now goes before a Civil Service hearing examiner and could reach the entire Civil Service Commission on appeal.

Robey said Friday he was unsure if he would return to the forensic center if reinstated. He said he fears the center's staff will not remain intact.

Robey also released his response to the investigation report, refuting charges of lax administration. He said the department showed no interest in the problems caused by a rapidly increasing caseload, understaffing and shortages of money.

Christmas Mail Still Ten Cents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service will delay an increase in the cost of mailing a letter from 10 to 13 cents until after the Christmas rush.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced Friday that the increase would be delayed despite postal deficits that are running at $200 million per month.

Bailar said the Postal Service would file for the rate increase "sometime in the next two weeks" to take effect after Christmas.

Previously, Bailar had said the Postal Service would raise mail rates as soon as permanent rates are established and the new rates would go into effect 90 days later. A permanent rate schedule, similar to the one now in effect, becomes effective Sept. 14.

Police Hunt 2 In London Bombing

LONDON (AP) — Police searched today for two men seen speeding away in a blue car from the Hilton Hotel minutes before a bomb blast ripped through the lobby, killing a man and a woman and wounding 82 other persons.

Hotel staff told police they saw a man run from the hotel and get into the car in Park Lane. The car was driven off by a second man who had stayed behind the wheel.

About 10 pounds of explosive hidden under a marble-top coffee table in the lobby went off at lunchtime Friday, severing limbs of several victims. The dead woman was headless and limbless, eyewitnesses said.

The injured included at least three Americans: James MacDonald of Boca Raton, Fla., had abdominal injuries and was among nine persons detained in St. George's Hospital. Brig. Gen. Joseph Capucci of Falls Church, Va., and Joseph Collins of Fairfax, Va., were released after treatment for minor injuries.

Seventeen hours after the explosion the two dead still were not named. The dead woman was believed to be English.

Police refused to speculate on who planted the bomb, but it was thought to be the work of a splinter group of the Irish Republican Army which is fighting to get the British out of Northern Ireland.

LAWN WEEDS

Make plans now to control perennial lawn weeds. Fall applications of 2, 4-D, Silvex or dicamba weed killers will control buckhorn, burdock, dandelion, henbit, thistles and other broadleaf weeds. The chemicals may be applied separately or with a fertilizer.

Be very careful where you put these chemicals. Stay well outside the dripline of trees and shrubs. The chemicals will move down in the soil and be absorbed by plant roots causing injury to weeds and landscape plants.

In short, don't fertilize everything with weed and feed fertilizer — only lawns.

BORERADISH

Boreradish makes its greatest growth during late summer and early fall. For this reason, delay harvesting until late October. Three to four days before harvesting, remove the tops as near to the ground as possible. Use wine vinegar when grating to prevent boreradish from turning brown.

VACATION DREAM HOUSE

By JOHN D. BLOODGOOD, Author

HOUSE DESIGN 7531: If you rent a home at the shore or in the mountains every summer, maybe this is the year when you'll decide to build a vacation home of your own. If so, here's a house to consider. It offers lots of appeal for family living, and at very modest cost.

Glass is used importantly on the view side, more modestly elsewhere. Space, too, is used dramatically on the view side with sloped ceiling in the dining area opening up to a studio loft. Note the economy of dual-function bath with built-in stacked washer and dryer, combination lavatory, laundry sink. Storage space is generous with bulk area under stairs for sports gear and suitcases, central shelf and hanging space in living room for foul-weather gear, games, etc., and 6-foot closets in master bedroom on main floor and in second bedroom on upper floor.

Studio room can be the scene of children's fun and games or it can serve as sleeping-bag headquarters when the children have weekend guests. Note deck off master bedroom and main deck off living-dining areas.

It's Worth Millions

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — South African families and businesses throw away about 2 million tons of waste a year with a potential value of $19 million excluding industrial and demolition waste, according to Johannesburg city engineer Val Bolitho.

Bolitho told the biennial congress of the Institute of Public Health here that South Africans throw away 1 million cans, 1 million glass bottles and millions of dollars worth of plastic containers a year. He said more would be achieved by limiting the quantity of wastes produced than by using expensive methods of recovering waste materials.

NEWS OF MARKETS

MARKET ACTIVITY SLOW: The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 835.97 Friday, up .63 from the week before. The Associated Press average closed at 259.7, down 1.9 over the same period. The stock market was mixed in inactive trading during the holiday-shortened week. Labor Day traditionally marks the opening of a new business year, but market averages managed only to regroup some early week losses. The threat of a default by New York City hung over the market for most of the period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

State Property, Crop Loss May Reach $300 Million

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Continuing rains have state officials concerned about potential crop and property losses which may hit $300 million in the Lower Peninsula.
The bulk of the damage will be to crops, which were caught in flat fields of rising water for days on end, officials said.
Non-crop damage, such as to highways and homes, could run from $3 million to $5 million, say officials in Gov. William Milliken's office.

Milliken is expected to request federal disaster assistance for non-farm damage as soon as State Police complete damage reports, a Milliken aide said. The federal Disaster Assistance office in Chicago will send additional personnel to the state Monday to help gauge damage, the aide said.

Milliken must receive formal requests from county commissions before requesting federal farm disaster assistance. By Friday afternoon, no counties had requested such aid although as many as 17 counties might make such requests soon, officials in Milliken's office said.
"I have already received preliminary reports of extensive damage to homes, crops and public facilities, such as roads and bridges, caused by heavy rains that began last weekend and which, in some areas, are still continuing," Milliken said.
Damage appears greatest in a belt across the middle of the Lower Peninsula, "especially in Newaygo and Oceana counties," Milliken said.

Earlier estimates of $100 million in crop damage from heavy August rains are conservative and actual damage could be two or three times that amount, said Ed Ronkie, Michigan Department of Agriculture emergency services coordinator.

The bean crop in mid-Michigan and the Thumb area was 70 to 80 per cent wiped out, Ronkie said.

Because Michigan is one of the nation's biggest bean-producing states, churning out about 90 per cent of the nation's navy bean crop each year, agriculture experts say a bad harvest could force bean prices to skyrocket.

Beans currently are running at about $22 a hundred weight, but there reportedly is talk of prices more than doubling in the months ahead, perhaps even reaching the 1973 record of $57. Officials in Saginaw County have estimated damage to the local bean crop at $8 million. Similar estimates for Bay and Gratiot counties were $6 million to $8 million and $3.5 million respectively.

"The crop damage is astronomical," said Lt. Zane Gray, commander of the State Police Disaster Planning Section.

Two New Officials Sworn-In

SOUTH HAVEN — New South Haven township Supervisor James Schnake and Trustee Mrs. Emilia Miller, were sworn into office last night during a special meeting of the township board.

The officials were picked last Tuesday in a special election to fill vacancies created by the July recall of former supervisor Clifford Klapp and trustee Donald Getman.

Clerk Franklin Torp reported that the official canvass of votes showed that absentee ballots from the second precinct had not been included in the totals announced the night of the election, but it did not affect the outcome of the two races or a proposition which passed. The proposition permits the creation of a township-wide fire protection district.

Torp said he received the official totals from the Van Buren county clerk for Schnake, Miller, and the "yes" ballots on the proposition, but not for the other candidates. The official totals showed Schnake with 386 votes as opposed to the unofficial count of 344, while Mrs. Miller received an official 345 votes instead of the unofficial 308. The proposition received 400 affirmative votes. Ballots were cast by 623 electors.

Unofficial vote totals for the two other candidates for township supervisor were 125 for Ed Szymczak and 79 for Willie Bradford. Unofficial vote tallies for the other candidate for township clerk, Henry Spears, was 216.

The unofficial vote for the fire district proposition was 353-148.

Decatur Man Bound Over On Manslaughter Charge

By DENNIS COGSWELL

PAW PAW — A 22-year-old Decatur man was bound over to Van Buren circuit court yesterday on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in the death of his eight-month-old son.

Bound over was Roy Dale Powell, who had originally been charged with first-degree murder in the June 27 death of Kurt Canard. The child was born to Powell and his wife, Mary Canard Powell, before they were married, she testified.

Judge William C. Buhl said evidence presented during the preliminary hearing failed to show the elements of pre-meditation or malice aforethought required for a first or second-degree murder charge.

In testimony yesterday, Dr.

Daniel Glaser, a Kalamazoo pathologist who performed an autopsy on the child, said he found evidence of fractured ribs healing, four small bruises behind the left ear, two bruises on the back, and a cut on the child's chin which led him to believe there had been a pattern of physical abuse.

Glaser had testified previously that the cause of death was a rupture of the right auricle of the child's heart caused by a compression of the chest.

Dr. Norman Gremel, a Kalamazoo radiologist who took x-rays of Kurt after his death, said he found two fractured ribs which were healing. He estimated the injury occurred four to six weeks before the boy's death, but said he could not be sure what caused it.

Mrs. Powell testified that she had never known her husband to strike Kurt other than to slap or spank him. She said the bruises on the boy's head may have occurred when he fell out of a stroller earlier.

In earlier testimony, Det. Sgt. Lowell Wilds of the Paw Paw state police post, said Powell admitted to him that he had put his heel on Kurt's back but that he did not plan to seriously injure the boy.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R-Ariz.)

I've been wondering about your recent TV statement that your mail is running high towards isolationism and why you said, "God forbid that." What has our policy of interventionism got for us but a succession of wars and enemies? —J. Marshall Porter, Cumberland, Md.

● You obviously did not live through the 1920's and 1930's when this country was controlled by isolationism. As a result we were dragged into a second world war which probably would not have occurred had the U.S. been militarily prepared to stand up as a power. Our policy has not been intervention. Our policies generally have been to stay away. It was only through the decision of President Kennedy, furthered by President Johnson, that we became interventionists and participated in a war in South Vietnam which we lost through Kennedy's and Johnson's inability to understand how wars should be fought.

FOR SANDY KOUFAX, former pitching star

Were you surprised when Nolan Ryan tied your record for no-hitters with his fourth? —Bill Connolly, Bridgeport, Conn.

● Not at all. There was no doubt he was going to do it. The only question now is how many more will he pitch? With the fast ball he has, the number might reach 10 or 12.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Why do TV quiz-show contestants cover their faces with their hands when they're selected? —Mrs. G. MacDowell, Racine, Wis.

● Hands covering the face represent a moment of privacy to deal with one's joy and fright before one becomes public again. But contestants have watched other programs and see how they're supposed to behave. Those who show emotion are those who get the most camera shots. The happier the contestants look, the happier the producers.

FOR CINDY ADAMS

Have you written anything besides the biography of Sukarno? —Henry Marhaeni, Lakeland, Fla.

● I've just finished helping Jolie Gabor with her life story. The book on Sukarno, with all its intrigue, Communist uprisings, revolutions and all, is child's play compared with what will happen when Zsa Zsa, Eva and Magda read the new book. Mamma Jolie said: "Ven Cindy finishes the book, my husband will throw me out, and my daughters won't talk to me."

FOR JAN-MICHAEL VINCENT, star of "Bite the Bullet"
Did you ever do a nude scene in a film? —E.B., Little Rock, Ark.

● Yes. "Buster and Billie" in 1974. It was controversial because I was the first male star to appear in a front shot in a major film. However, I think the scene was done in excellent taste. Also, women have always been the ones to get exploited in films, and I don't believe in double standards. I'm told that movie made me a full-fledged star. I hope it was because of my performance and not my physique.

FOR EDITH HEAD, movie fashion designer

How do you feel about women wearing slacks or pants suits to church? —J.J. Jorgensen, Racine, Wis.

● I feel most strongly that women should go to church, or any house of worship, dressed properly and according to the requirements of their religion.

FOR SUSAN FORD

Does being the President's daughter leave you any time for your personal pursuits and hobbies? —A. Moore, Bloomington, Ind.

● I've tried not to let my father's job affect my way of life. I go to school and still spend a lot of my free time with the friends I've always had. I enjoy almost all sports, as well as cooking, needlepoint, photography and raising plants.

FOR MRS. MARY BROOKS, Director of the Mint

Has the penny shortage been overcome, and is there a scarcity of any other coins? —A. Kravitz, New York, N.Y.

● We figure the shortage is almost over since the price of copper has receded worldwide. The shortages that everyone expected after the Arab oil embargo did not develop, and our massive efforts to point out there was no numismatic value to the 75 billion pennies we had minted without any design changes also contributed to returning the penny to circulation. There's no scarcity of other coins.

FOR LOWELL THOMAS

Now that you're 83, which one of all your broadcasts do you remember most? —Mrs. Gloria Santini, Vineland, N.J.

● One I gave from my rural studio on Quaker Hill. One day, lightning struck the studio while I was on the air and cut me off—so for 15 minutes, without knowing it, I was just talking to myself. Then there was my series from Tibet; one from cannibal country in New Guinea; the first broadcast from the Pole; the Coronation of George VI; the first from a plane... Is my time up yet?

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Are Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme really happily married? —Helen Richie, Cary, Ind.

● Apparently, yes. Steve, 40, and Eydie, 43, were teenage sweethearts and married Dec. 29, 1957. They have two teenage sons, David and Michael. They've been in show business for more than two decades and, from all accounts, are an ideal couple and model parents in spite of the fact they spend close to six months each year on the road, including Las Vegas, concerts and TV work. Both were born in the Bronx, New York, and now live in California. What's unusual about these two is that throughout the time they've been singing and performing, their style, classified as "Easy Listening," has remained constant. You might like to know they're doing a Thanksgiving-night TV special of Gershwin songs.

"The new commandment might read, 'Thou shalt not feel jealous.' In many ways, this new moral tone is more rigid than the old."

Can Jealousy Possibly Be an "Obsolete" Emotion?

Recently, a young woman, whom I will call Joyce, told me she was afraid of losing her husband, Bill. I asked why.

"Well, Bill spent the night with this other woman," she said. "I know. I shouldn't be jealous. Bill ought to be able to choose his companions. But I can't stand it. I get so jealous I hate myself."

"What's wrong with being jealous?"

The question threw Joyce off balance. "Jealousy is awful. There is nothing good you can say about it. My jealousy upsets me, it restricts Bill, and it brings out the worst in me."

"I don't like to be jealous, either," I answered. "It is about the most disgusting emotion I can think of. But there are times when I get jealous, and there is nothing I can do about it. I just have to wait until the jealous period passes. One thing is certain: I have never been able to control my jealousy."

But the New Attitude Toward Jealousy persists. Listen to this exchange in a college classroom:

"Sometimes I hate myself," Diane cried out. I get so jealous of my boy friend I could scream. I mean, George told me he was going out with other chicks, and I said it was all right. He ought to get to know other women, but I can't stand it. When I know he's spending the evening with another girl, it drives me crazy."

"Couldn't you spend the same evening with another guy?" An older male student was talking now. "If you were with someone else, maybe it wouldn't bother you so much."

"I don't want to spend the evening with another guy. I just want to be with George. I know that's being possessive, and I hate it when I get that way. But I don't know what to do. It seems like the more time he spends with other women, the more possessive I get. I don't know what to do."

Recently, discussions like this have become common in colleges as jealousy has increasingly become an unacceptable emotion. It is considered a sign of insecurity, a mark of immaturity or an indication of emotional instability. This holds true with couples who are going together, who are living with each other, even those who are married.

Jealousy has never been considered a pretty emotion. Shakespeare, in "Othello," calls it "the green-eyed monster." But, until a few years ago, it was at least considered a sign that you loved your partner. You had a right to be jealous if your partner was "unfaithful." Any wife who discovered her husband was having an affair could automatically sue for divorce. If a husband shot his wife's lover, courts were often lenient. Feeling jealousy and ventilating it was not only understandable, it was expected.

Attitudes seemed to begin changing about the time Nena and George O'Neill published their book, "Open Marriage." It is difficult to say whether the book captured a lifestyle change or promoted it. Probably a little of both. The O'Neills suggest that most couples would profit from opening their marriages to others.

In their treatment of jealousy, the O'Neills leave an impression that is disconcerting. "To begin with," they contend, "we would like to lay to rest the idea that sexual jealousy is natural, instinctive and inevitable. It is none of these things." They further suggest that jealousy "breeds deep-rooted dependencies, infantile and childish emotions, and insecurities." In another place they claim, "jealousy, like a destructive cancer, breeds more jealousy."

"No one likes to feel jealous. We don't want others to feel jealous of us. On the other hand, there is a whole spectrum of emotions we are uncomfortable with—loneliness, anger, fear, doubt—and if we never experienced any of these emotions, we would lack a rich part of the human experience."

No wonder couples are in turmoil over any feeling that might suggest jealousy or possessiveness. To admit a jealous feeling in such a context is rather like admitting to some horrible and contagious disease.

What seems to be happening is that rapidly changing attitudes toward sex and marriage are creating a new moral code. The new commandment might read, "Thou shalt not feel jealous." In many ways, this new moral tone is more rigid than the old. There appears to be no reprieve from the sin of jealousy. Young men and women seem unable to forgive themselves; they refuse to give themselves space to grow.

Let's, for one unrealistic minute, consider a world free of jealousy:

Anne, a mature woman of 45, told me the story of her jealous-free marriage. "I had the perfect attitude in my marriage. I told John he could have a relationship with any woman who attracted him. I told him I trusted him completely. And I did. I really believed John would never fall in love with another woman.

H. Amstrong Roberts

"What happened?"

"After nine years of marriage, he asked me for a divorce so he could marry my best friend. I found out later I had driven him away. I gave him every reason to believe I didn't care. He told me he thought my career was more important to me than he was."

The ideal world would see us always wishing our lover the freedom to grow in other relationships. The real world finds us often feeling possessive toward the one we love. We may hate ourselves for such a feeling, but it is a part of our life. It is so much a part of even the best love relationships that its absence makes us wonder. A lack of jealousy can also indicate a lack of concern and love.

By Joseph Simons

I never met Anne's husband so I can only speculate about his feelings. Yet, I think it is fair to say that we all expect some jealousy from our partner. In the world of rich love, jealousy is inevitable. Once we open ourselves to another person, we fear the loss of that person.

No one likes to feel jealous. We don't want others to feel jealous of us. On the other hand, there is a whole spectrum of emotions we are uncomfortable with—loneliness, anger, fear and doubt—and, if we never experienced any of these emotions, we would lack a rich part of the human experience.

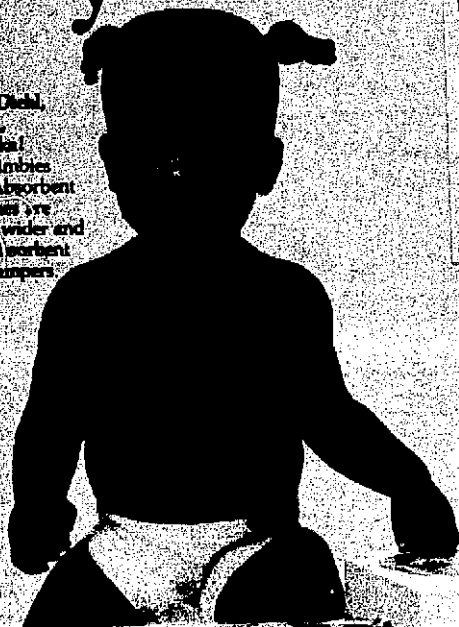

When we look for psychological miracles, we begin losing contact with reality. The person who expects instantly to remove all traces of jealousy is demonstrating personal immaturity. The mature person knows that learning to trust is a slow and painful process. And only the most mature person will have the patience to begin that trusting process.

A young man who was in an encounter group with me several years ago summed up the nature of love as well as anyone. "When I am with my girl," he said, "I never have the urge to be anything except myself. She never puts me under any pressure to play a role. I don't have to be a student, a lover, or even a man when I am with her. All she expects is that I be myself." When asked about his feelings toward her, he said, "I feel the same about her. I only want her to be herself. I would feel betrayed if she were to hide from me the person she happens to be at any given moment. If I couldn't share her doubts, anger, pain, I don't know how I could love her."

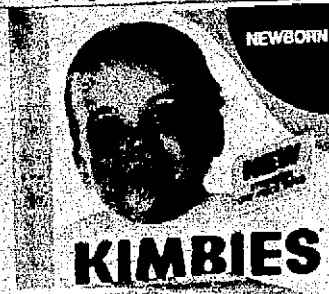

We all recognize our own desires in that statement. We want, more than anything else, to be accepted for ourselves. We don't want to have to pretend. We want someone who will say, "It's all right to be fearful, confused or angry. I don't want you to change. I just want you to be yourself." It may be more difficult to turn that attitude around—particularly in the case of jealousy—and say, "I get jealous at times. I don't like it, but that's the way I am. I hope you can let me be jealous when those moods hit me. I don't want to have to pretend." But that is what, sometimes, we have to do. Only then—and with the passage of time—can couples hope to build relationships that are truly free and nonrestrictive.

Family Weekly's High School

These are the high school stars college recruiters predict will be tomorrow's football heroes on university campuses.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

When college football's recruiters go shopping this fall for the top talent among high school senior gridiron performers, they'll likely linger long in Bryan, Texas, and Stroud, Okla. These two cities happen to be the homes of perhaps the two greatest young running backs in the country—Curtis Dickey of Bryan and Barry Burget of Stroud.

The advent of such volatile offensive formations like the Wishbone and the Veer has shifted the emphasis from the passing game to the running game in college ball, and quality running backs are being scouted in ever-increasing numbers. Some of the nation's top recruiters—representing Alabama, Arizona State, Boston College, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Texas and UCLA—were polled by FAMILY WEEKLY in an attempt to determine the 30 best prospects among this year's high school seniors. Seven running backs emerged and even among the eight quarterbacks cited, several were considered to have strong futures as running backs or field generals for teams with running attacks.

But none of the other runners received the raves accorded Dickey and Burget: A 6-foot-2, 190-pound athlete who has run 100 yards in 9.6 seconds, Dickey is "a genuine 'super,'" according to one of FAMILY WEEKLY's recruiter-panelists. "Every school in the country knows about him and would love to have him. He's a quiet, softspoken young man and would be a fine addition to any football program."

In 1974 Curtis averaged 7.8 yards per carry and 18.1 yards on 22 punt returns. His flashy runs scored 153 points. His hometown of Bryan in southeast Texas is a sister city of College Station, the home of Texas A&M University, a fact which would seemingly discourage recruiters from other areas from attempting to entice Dickey with scholarship offers. But, says a FAMILY WEEKLY panelist, "maybe he doesn't want to stay home. We'd love to talk to him about coming to our place."

Burget, from Stroud, doesn't have the speed of Dickey, but he has considerable power. At 6-foot-3 and 205 pounds, he has been a leading discus thrower. Barry thundered through enemy football lines for 8.1 yards per carry while leading Stroud High School to the state championship last fall.

One school—St. Mary's of Phoenix, Ariz.—features two of the players on our select list of 30 scholastic standouts. They are wide receiver Speedy Hart and running back David Mitchell, the stalwarts of St. Mary's state championship powerhouse of 1974. Hart, 6-1, 190, caught 46 passes for 964 yards and 15 touchdowns last season. Mitchell, a six-footer who weighs 195, ran for an eye-popping 1,913 yards.

Among the top-rated quarterbacks, two southern Californians drew considerable praise. Kenny Moore of San Fernando (Cal.) High School is the all-around kind, having run for 781 yards and passed for 769 yards a year ago.

Mark Malone of El Cajon High in San Diego, may have the strongest throwing arm of any high school quarterback in the nation. Last track season he threw the discus 181½ feet, one of the best prep marks on record. Jeff Pyburn, top-flight quarterback from Cedar Shoals High School, Athens, Ga., is the son of former Auburn All-American Jim Pyburn.

All-America Forecast

As always, there are several members of our top 30 list who have outstanding size (see accompanying list), and all of them are fine athletes. But Bruce Clark of Newcastle (Pa.)

High School may be the most versatile athlete of all—particularly for a big man. Bruce is a tight end and linebacker who stands 6-foot-3 and weighs 235 pounds. In addition to excelling at football, he also plays basketball, wrestles and competes in track as a long-jumper and pole-vaulter. Any 235-pounder who can jump 20 feet and vault 12 feet has got to look attractive to football scouts.

TV's Jack Albertson: The Confessions of a Former Dropout

TV star Jack Albertson with his two best girls—Wally, his political activist wife, and daughter Maura, a talented night club singer.

"She's had a tremendous influence on me. It was through her that I developed interests on a higher plain. Like getting involved with worthwhile causes, working with minority groups. . . . Most of all, she's a very hard worker. It has to rub off on me."

I met Jack Albertson for lunch at NBC where he stars in the highly rated "Chico and the Man" TV series; so highly rated, in fact, that one of the NBC executives handed him the latest rating sheet which put the show in the number-one spot of all the ratings. Jack was flabbergasted.

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you explain the success of the show?

JACK: I don't really know. Some people say it's the relationship between Freddie [Freddie Prinze, who plays Chico] and me. He's a marvelous boy. We're very simpatico. We get along beautifully in spite of the large generation gap. I'm not only old enough to be his father but his grandfather!

FW: There used to be some Chicano opposition to the show.

JACK: That's died down, but I think there were a number of reasons. First of all, Freddie—who plays a Chicano—is not Chicano. He's Puerto Rican. In fact, he isn't even Puerto Rican. He's half Puerto Rican and half Hungarian. The Chicano community felt that a Chicano should have been cast for the part. But I don't necessarily agree. Maybe Freddie's accent isn't totally Chicano. But if that's the case, the variance is so slight that I think very few people would know the difference. It certainly hasn't affected the show. Some Chicanos also were against the show because they felt that the character Freddie portrays was stupid, illiterate and subservient. But I think that's totally wrong.

FW: Are you in politics yourself?

JACK: I am, mostly through my wife. She's a strong political activist. She's a Democratic national committeewoman. She also teaches communications at UCLA, and is working hard on her Ph.D. in speech. She already has three degrees: her M.A., M.S. and B.A.

FW: How far did you go in school?

JACK: I dropped out when I was a freshman in high school. I was told that I was a destructive influence in the class. I was constantly making jokes, or at least the class thought I did. The teachers didn't. Everybody was better off when I left.

FW: Did you ever regret your lack of formal education?

JACK: I most certainly did. Formal education teaches you to use your intelligence, use your mind—if you have any. But I furthered my education simply by living with my wife. She's had a tremendous influence on me. It was through her that I developed interests on a higher plain. Like getting involved with worthwhile causes, working with minority groups. Through her I also became involved in politics. Most of all, she's a very hard worker. It has to rub off on me.

FW: How?

JACK: When I first came to California I was known as a comedy man. I supported Jack Benny, Red Skelton, a host of others. When I decided to study acting seriously, to become a legitimate actor, I had to pass up a lot of jobs that brought in bread. Wally, my wife, was behind me all the way while I improved my situation and my status. She suffered through years when things were pretty bad, so when I eventually earned a Tony Award and an Academy Award, a lot of the credit had to go to her.

FW: How did the two of you meet?

JACK: I used to tell friends that I just opened my wallet and there she was. Actually she was the story editor at NBC, and she'd written a radio story in which I appeared as an actor. But it wasn't until I returned to Broadway and she came back to New York that the romance really started. We fell in love and got married on Halloween day, 1952.

FW: A peculiar day to choose for your wedding, isn't it?

JACK: It gave her a chance to get off her broom long enough to marry me.

FW: Your daughter Maura is 20, and I understand she's your Girl Friday.

JACK: Yes, she is. She does a lot of things for me. But primarily she's interested in her own career. She's a singer and works in clubs. She's very beautiful and very talented.

FW: Are there different types of comedians?

JACK: Certainly. There are two types of comedians: the sadistic type who attacks the audience constantly and the masochistic type who plays off his own idiosyncrasies. Milton Berle and Don Rickles are sadistic types. Jack Benny, on the other hand, was a masochist. He played off his own supposed miserliness and cowardliness.

FW: How would you classify yourself?

JACK: I'm a sketch comedian who does little of both. That's my great joy in this profession. Versatility. I do a lot of things, and I think I do them well. Not outstanding, but well.

FW: Of all the comedians with whom you have worked, who was the easiest to get along with?

JACK: Jack Benny. He was so polished. And he enjoyed when the people he worked with got laughs.

FW: Who was the most difficult?

JACK: I guess Bert Lahr. He didn't want anyone else to get any laughs. That's the problem when you're a straight man. You have to be good enough to feed an actor a line properly, but not so good as to show him off.

FW: What was the toughest time you had in your career?

JACK: When I was in New York during the depth of the Depression. There were many nights when I slept on park benches or in the subway, when I didn't even have enough money to stay in a flop house. It only cost a nickel to get on the subway and ride to the end of the line. When I got there, I'd hide behind some pillar when the guards emptied the train, and then sneak back on. In the summer-time, it was a bit easier. I could sleep in Central Park.

FW: Do you have any plans to retire?

JACK: None until I'm senile or disabled.

Is there an answer to the smoking question?

Should people smoke? They've been battling that one since the smoking controversy started. Smokers have an answer. Non-smokers have another answer. And the critics of smoking think they have all the answers.

But arguing whether people should or shouldn't smoke isn't going to change anything. The reality is that people do smoke. And they will continue to smoke. No matter what anyone says.

So perhaps a more realistic question would be: what should a smoker smoke?

If some smokers don't want to give up smoking yet find themselves concerned about 'tar' and nicotine, then the critics could well recommend that they switch to a low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. Like Vantage.

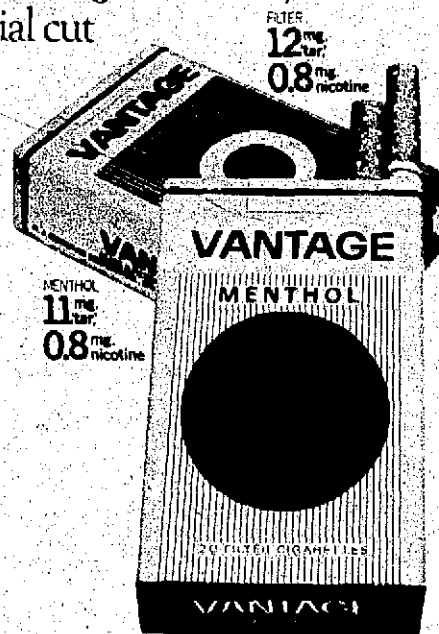

And if some of these smokers prefer a menthol cigarette, then the critics could suggest that they switch to a low 'tar' and nicotine menthol. Like Vantage Menthol.

Vantage Menthol offers smokers all the cool, refreshing flavor they could ever ask for. And at the same time gives them the substantial cut in 'tar' and nicotine they may be looking for.

Now Vantage Menthol isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol around. But anything lower probably compromises the flavor.

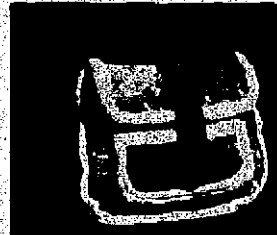

So if you smoke a menthol cigarette, we're not going to argue whether you should or you shouldn't. The fact is you do.

And if you want to do something about 'tar' and nicotine, Vantage Menthol could be one answer for you to consider.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER: 12 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report MAR. '75.

Smart Cooking
Day Before Payday

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes a big batch of spaghetti sauce. "Once in a while," says Marilyn, "I really like to cook up a storm! This time it's quarts and quarts of meat sauce to store in the freezer for future meals. This recipe has an up-to-date feature, too: It uses soybeans to extend the meat protein."

Meat-Stretching Spaghetti Sauce to Make Now, Eat any Time

ITALIAN MEAT SAUCE WITH SOYBEANS

- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 cups chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped garlic
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano leaves
- 1 tablespoon dried basil leaves
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 lbs. ground beef
- 1 lb. Italian sweet or hot sausage, boiled and sliced
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley or 1/4 cup dried parsley flakes
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon cracked black pepper
- 3 cans (1 lb. 12 oz. size) whole tomatoes in tomato puree
- 4 cans (8 oz. size) tomato sauce
- 3 cups water
- 5 cups cooked soybeans (see soybean recipe)
- 3 cups soybean liquid or water

1. Heat vegetable oil in 8-10 quart kettle. Add onion, garlic, oregano, basil and bay leaves. Sauté for about 8-10 minutes, stirring frequently until onion is very tender.

2. Add ground beef and cook until it loses brown color, breaking up with spoon as it cooks.

3. Add Italian sausage slices, parsley, salt, sugar, black pepper, tomatoes, tomato sauce and water. Heat to boiling, cover and reduce heat, simmer slowly for about two hours. Stir once in a while.

4. Add cooked soybeans and liquid, heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer one hour. Use what you need for immediate use. Freeze remainder of sauce in family-size containers.

Makes about 7 1/2-8 qts.

Tender, nutritious cooked soybeans added to a simmering kettle of Italian Meat Sauce.

HOW TO COOK SOYBEANS FOR MEAT SAUCE

- 2 cups soybeans, rinsed
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon salt
- Water
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped celery

1. Combine soybeans with oil, salt and enough water to cover. Soak overnight in refrigerator.

2. Next day, drain and discard liquid.
Cook in either of following ways.

3. Regular Method: Turn soybeans into large 3-4 qt. saucepan. Add 2 qts.
water, onion and celery. Bring to boiling. Cover; reduce heat and simmer for 2 1/2-2 3/4 hours, until soybeans are tender.

4. Drain. Use soybeans as is or in recipes; use liquid in soups.

Pressure Cooker Method: Turn soybeans and vegetables into pressure cooker; add water to cover beans well.
Allow 1 qt. water in 4-qt. pressure cooker. Do not fill cooker over half full.

Close cover, heat-pressure cooker.
When regulator rocks steadily and air vent is up, start timing. Cook 30 minutes. Remove from heat, let pressure drop of its own accord.

Makes about 5 cups soybeans

WHAT'S SMART?

It's really smart to save on your own energy by assembling, chopping and cooking a huge pot of spaghetti sauce at one time. It saves future meal preparation time: both human and fuel energy. Also, it makes good sense to utilize the high protein and mineral goodness in soybeans to really step up the nutrition value of the sauce.

People Quiz

How Well Can You Trust Your Hunches?

True or False: When it comes to ESP, women have it over men. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The various forms of ESP—hunches, inner promptings and other manifestations of the sixth sense—can be used effectively in profit-making.
2. Most people disregard their intuitive hunches when making critical decisions and rely solely on hard facts and logical thinking.
3. When it comes to ESP, women have it over men.
4. Even animals have ESP, which manifests itself in the form of intuitive hunches (often about people); as well as other abilities involving the sixth sense.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Newark College of Engineering, computerized tests of top executives for ESP indicate that superior ESP scores are strongly correlated with superior profit-making ability. The investigators observe that while these results do not prove that precognition (gold-plated hunches) and profit-making are always related, the probability of successful business operations is much increased when this ability is present—and fully utilized.
2. False. Psychological studies show that "Most of our practical judgments of complex issues and persons contain a large intuitive element." It's also pointed out that we are often unaware of the extent to which we are influenced by an intuitive feeling or hunch. ("Come to think of it, there really wasn't any logical reason for this—I just had a sudden impulse to handle it this way, and it worked out fine.")

3. True—if they have a positive attitude toward ESP. An interesting psychological experiment was conducted on four groups of students at Purdue University: men students with highly positive attitudes, men students with highly negative attitudes, and two groups of women students having highly positive and highly negative attitudes. All were given precognition tests using ESP target cards. Results: women were better than the men when they had a positive attitude, but not as good as the men when their attitude was negative. Conclusion: "On the basis of the findings, females would seem to possess more ESP than males."

4. True. As one authority on the psychology of animal behavior observes: "The evidence that ESP is present in other species besides our own is considerable. Results with animals are at least as positive and consistent as human results, probably much more so." It's also noted that many animals have an acute sixth sense about people and places—picking up good or bad "vibes" as the person or situation may warrant. ("I've learned by experience to be wary of trusting a person my dog takes a sudden dislike to"; "Sometimes I think my wire-haired terrier is better at seeing through phonies than I am," etc.)

What in the World!

MARLON BRANDO
He reads his shoes

For 25 years people have commented on Marlon Brando's hesitating, often mumbling manner of speaking his lines. One possible reason for it is brought out by Alice Marchak who, with Linda Hunter, wrote a book called "The Supersecs"—all about what it is like to be a very personal secretary to a superstar. "Marlon uses 'idiot cards,'" says Alice, "because he won't memorize long speeches, and he's got to have them where he can most easily read them. In 'Mutiny on the Bounty,' he was not just gazing lovingly into Tarita's eyes, he was reading his lines on her forehead."

head." In a scene in "Last Tango in Paris," Brando seemed fascinated by the sole of his shoe. Critics referred to it as "a very bizarre piece of business." "Actually," says Alice, "he was reading his lines that were written on the sole of his shoe." In "The Godfather," when he intently stared at a batch of papers in the board room, he was really reading the lines which Alice had typed and put into the folder. "Marlon has no problem memorizing his lines," Alice insists, "but he prefers to use just the key words, then improvise. He feels that memorizing a long speech makes it too stiff, too formal. He likes the free flow of dialogue."

Wanna count the national debt? Recently, a scientist and inventor, Dr. O.A. Battista, sat down and had some fun with just that. He came up with the following "game," which he passed on to FAMILY WEEKLY: Start counting the seconds on a clock this minute and equate each second with one dollar. Never stop day or night, never take the slightest breather for the next 11,000 days (a little more than 30 years). At the end of this time, you will have added up almost one billion dollars. If you had been born in 10,000 B.C., and at birth had started counting a dollar a second, day and night without letup, you would now still have another 3,865 years or so to go before you counted up all the dollars in the national debt—528 billion.

WITTY TRASH CAN
It "litterly" talks

How do you stop people from littering when the threat of $200 fines doesn't even work? A psychology professor at C.W. Post College on Long Island may have solved the problem. While working on studies which deal with man's reaction to the unexpected, Professor Jeff Corey came up with the idea of a talking trash can which operates through a wire recorder fitted into the receptacle and is activated every time someone puts material into the can. Corey's experiment has so far proven successful; the college that has this talking can is a lot cleaner these days. What does the can say? At the moment, "Arthur" (the trash can's name) has a rather limited vocabulary, but his retorts are breaking up students. "That's the most ridiculous thing I've ever eaten," Arthur says after receiving popsicle sticks. "Down with trash" is also one of his favorites. After each phrase, Arthur politely says, "Thank you."
